UTILITY PROBE BATTLE OPENS IN CONGRESS

Pinchot Ready to Put Findings of Experts Before Montana Senator

WALSH URGES INQUIRY Utilities Official Denies Single Instance of Threatened Monopoly

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1927, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—The fight on the public utility has begun. Gifford Pinchot, former governor of Pennsylvania, announces that he is ready to put all the findings of his experts at the disposal of Senator Walsh of Montana, Democrat, who hopes next week to secure passage of a resolution of investigation of the whole financial structure of the utility corporations. Josiah T. Newcomb, general counsel of the joint committee of national utility associations, has issued a statement replying to Mr. Pinchot. Also the National Popular Government League, directed by Judson King, has given out a printed pamphlet entitled "Who's Who" in the Super-Power Lobby in Washington and Out" and announces that this is only the beginning of a series of disclosures.

Governor Pinchot says 41 corporations monopolize all the sources of power for four fifths of the people and that five dominant electrical interests are allied and tied together "first by their common interest in maintaining their present power to collect extortionate rates from their customers and the combined electric lobby now in Washington which represents them all is proof of that."

Mr. Newcomb replies that the federal trade commission report last year fully set forth the facts after an exhaustive investigation and that their report "finds no single interest or group controls as much as 10 per cent of the output and that there is no evidence of criminal combination between the respective groups."

Mr. Newcomb's committee represents the National Electric Light Association, the American Electric Railway Association and the American Gas Association. To the charge that large holding companies have been formed, Mr. Newcomb replies:

"Modern methods of mass production and modern financial methods resulting in widespread investment by the public in industrial enterprises, have, of course, affected the electrical as well as most other industries, its independent units have increased rapidly in size. But the tendency has been away from monopoly, not toward it. The increased size and consequent increased efficiency and resources of the independent units have produced results favorable both to the public served and to the investing public."

ANALYZE FINANCING
Senator Walsh and Governor Pinchot are interested in analyzing the exact way in which the various holding companies have been financed and how far power has been concentrated in the hands of a few. The National Popular Government League is endeavoring to show the advantages in some cities of municipal ownership of power and its literature is directed against the alleged activity of power interests against Boulder dam legislation. Mr. King in his first announcement says:

Through warnings given by United States senators George W. Norris of Nebraska, Hiram Johnson of California, former Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania and others which have been given remarkable publicity by the press, the people are aware that there is a power super-lobby in the making to mould public opinion and control power legislation in the coming session of congress. The principal objectives of this super lobby are to kill the Boulder canyon bill, deliver Muscle Shoals to the power combine, sidetrack the resolution to investigate the power trust as proposed by Senator Walsh of Montana, and turn over an invaluable power site belonging to the Flathead Indians of Montana to the Montana Power company without just compensation to its owners."

RAILROAD COMMISSION ORDERS SUBWAY HERE

CITY'S SHARE OF COST MORE THAN $50,000

Total Cost of Structure on E. Wisconsin-ave Estimated at $180,000

Definite orders to separate the grade crossings of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad and the Wisconsin-Michigan Power Co. tracks on E. Wisconsin-ave were received Monday morning by the city of Appleton from the Wisconsin railroad commission. The order apportions the cost and demands that the grade separation be completed by June 1, 1928.

The total cost of the subway, including damage to property and surfacing of a street to connect E. Wisconsin-ave with Randall-ave and Viola-st, is approximately $180,000, of which Appleton's share is approximately one-half. The Wisconsin Highway commission, however, has agreed to pay half of Appleton's share of the cost and also half of Grand Chute's share, but the total highway commission aid will not exceed one-fourth of the total cost of the project nor more than one-half of the total share of the railroad and traction companies' share. In the event that half of Appleton's share plus half of Grand Chute's share is more than one-fourth of the total cost of the project the highway commission will pro-rate its one fourth share to Grand Chute and Appleton.

CITY PAYS DAMAGES
The railroad commissions order makes Appleton liable for all property damage caused by construction of the subway and also for all damage for which the utility companies might be liable. Mayor Rule has estimated the property damage at about $10,000. He also has estimated that it will cost about $10,000 to acquire and surface the connecting link between Randall-ave and Viola-st, for which a right of way must be provided by the town of Grand Chute.

According to estimates filed with the railroad commission, the cost of

CONTINUE TO QUESTION LENG MURDER SUSPECT

Sheboygan—(P)—Portage and Sheboygan authorities prepared Monday to resume their questioning of a suspect in connection with the slaying of Helen Leng, 14-year-old Portage high school girl.

The suspect, who is serving a jail term here on a minor charge, has told conflicting stories of his whereabouts the night the Leng girl was murdered at Portage. Confronted with a letter threatening the life of a Manitowish woman which was found in the basement of his parents' home at Rhine, north of Plymouth, he denied all knowledge of it. The letter was addressed to the woman but not mailed, and said, according to authorities, that the writer would shoot her "the first chance I get."

MAN DEAD THREE WEEKS FOUND IN MADISON ROOM

Madison—(P)—The body of Ernest Sageman, 30, was found in a locked third floor room of the house in which he roomed Sunday. A coroner found he had died of natural causes about three weeks ago. He was last seen alive Nov. 14, when he paid for his room and said he was leaving town. Police forced the locked door after another roomer had for some time insisted that there "was something wrong" in the room adjoining his.

48 Sailors Owe Lives To Heroic Effort Of Guards

Norfolk, Va.—(P)—Forty-eight sailors owed their lives Monday to life-savers who brought new glory to the coast guard Sunday in picking them from certain death aboard two storm-driven ships off Cape Hatteras.

They were the crews of the Norwegian steamer Ciba and the Greek vessel Paragay. The latter lost four of her personnel Saturday night while southeast of Cape Henry, fighting the gale that eventually dashed both ships on the ground off Hatteras. The four were working the pumps in an effort to keep the Paragay afloat when a wave washed them overboard.

While a half a dozen ships, summoned by the Paragay's distress call, searched for her north of Kitty Hawk, N. C., she went ashore just three miles to shore. All were landed safely, although several were unscathed when pulled out of the surf.

The gale that destroyed the two steamers reached a velocity of 70 miles an hour off Hatteras and 35 at Cape Henry.

SINCLAIR ON TRIAL IN CONTEMPT CASE

BANDIT CHIEF IS KILLED BY COP IN HOLDUP

Attempt to Rob 200 Guests in Chicago Cafe Results in Gun Battle

Chicago—(P)—An attempt to hold up 200 guests at the Parody cafe, 1201 N. State-st at 2:45 Monday morning, turned into a sensational gun-fight with the dance floor as the battleground. One man was shot dead, five men and two women were wounded.

There were six robbers. Two, carrying pistols, entered the main entrance during an intermission in the dance program and ordered all hands up. Behind them came two others, carrying sub-machine guns, the rapid-firing automatic weapons frequently employed in gangster raids.

Behind these four came a man in black mask, carrying an automatic shotgun. This robber, the leader, stopped in the middle of the dance floor, whirling about with the weapon so as to command the four sides of tables at which sat the guests. The man in the mask fired one shot into the ceiling as he commanded all to keep their hands above their heads.

POLICEMAN OPENS FIRE
John Fried, a policeman attached to the city prosecutor's office, who was a guest, opened fire on the man, an easy mark in the center of the polished floor. The robber pivoted around to meet the attack-fired one shot and his weapon jammed.

Fried emptied his revolver and the bandit chief dropped with four bullets in his body. Later at a hospital it was said he probably would not recover.

When the robbers first appeared Harry Smith, a waiter, attempted to slip out a rear exit. He was shot dead by a lookout, the sixth member of the robber band.

The single shot the bandit leader let go in Fried's direction struck him in the chest, and he was killed. Others wounded are: Miss Fannie Hillman, 28; Charles Silverman and William F. Malone.

FOUR WOMEN KILLED IN ST. LOUIS HOTEL FIRE

St. Louis—(P)—Four women were known to have been killed and seven persons dangerously injured in a fire early Monday which destroyed the rear section of the Buckingham hotel annex with a loss of $170,000. Police feared other bodies were in the ruins. Three nurses, two of whom jumped from windows on the fourth floor, were in a critical condition.

There were 115 guests in the two sections of the annex when the fire was discovered. Many ran to the street in night clothing. Others had to be rescued from their room by firemen whose used gas masks because of the dense smoke. Among those sleeping in the hotel were 32 girls, pupils at the Central institute for the deaf. They were lead to safety.

VAUDEVILLE ACTRESS IS DEAD IN OSHKOSH CRASH

Oshkosh—(P)—Rose Marie Moore of St. Paul, Minn., member of the vaudeville "Two Jacks and A Queen" died here Saturday as a result of injuries sustained when a car driven by Robert Huff of Detroit, skidded and struck a tree at a sharp turn four miles south of Oshkosh Saturday night. Mr. Huff and Raymond Grass of Chicago, other two members of the act, were thrown from the car but not injured seriously.

MRS. LILLIENDAHL TELLS HER STORY OF SLAYING

Court Room, Mays Landing, N. J.—(P)—Sobbing and wringing her hands in a paroxysm of emotion Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl told on the stand Monday her story of how her husband was killed by two Negroes. She flatly denied that the shooting was done by Willis Beach, her friend and co-defendant.

She then told in detail of their drive along Asplen rd until she said two Negroes jumped on the running boards.

"They directed me to drive up that lane," she said. "Whether I drove or not I don't know. I don't remember. But I can remember being in there. My husband had often told me never to resist in a hold-up and this was uppermost in my mind."

"We came to a halt. The Negro on my side opened the door and grabbed me. As I was being dragged out, I heard a shot."

"Before I came to completely I heard sounds," she continued. "One was 'beat it, beat it.' Before the shot was fired the doctor said, for goodness sake, save her."

"When I came to I rolled over on an elbow and crawled out to the road. I tried to hail passing cars. My clothes had been torn almost away and my jewels were gone."

MUNICIPALITY CAN SELL GAS. HIGH COURT RULES

Washington—(P)—Putting the stamp of official approval on the city filling station operated by Lincoln, Neb., the supreme court held Monday that in the sale of gas and oil. The decision was a defeat for the Standard Oil company. The same question has arisen in other parts of the country. Lincoln's station has been in operation since 1924, and was declared to be taking away a substantial part of the business of private stations because it was selling gas and oil at cost.

Great Damage By Brush Fires In California Area

Los Angeles—(P)—Brush fires which have been raging in four sections of southern California since Saturday, continued to burn out of control in several places Monday after having consumed about 15 mountain homes and inflicting damages estimated at from $500,000 to more than $1,000,000, in the face of efforts by more than 3,000 men to stop them.

Driving winds, which often veered and turned into near gales, mocked the tired army of fighters along an extended front, and in one case the flames threatened to enter the chimney of the mountain cabin of Reginald Denny, the film actor. Denny and his caretaker were reported to have joined in fighting the blaze. The actor's large mountain home was saved.

The forest service Monday estimated that more than 8,900 acres had been burned.

NO CONTACTS WITH JURORS, MAGNATE SAYS

Oil Man Asks Dismissal of Charges for Lack of Court Jurisdiction

Washington—(P)—The action of Albert E. Fall, former secretary of the interior, sustaining the title of the Standard Oil company of California to a portion of the Elk Hills reserve in southern California, under a grant from the state of California, was upheld Monday by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

CONTEMPT TRIAL BEGINS
Washington—(P)—The contempt case against Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and four of their associates was begun Monday in the supreme court of the District of Columbia and immediately encountered the maze of legal quibbles that have marked all of the proceedings growing out of the naval oil leasing scandals.

Sinclair asked that the case be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. The defense contended it had made no actual contacts with jurors, but had stood on its legal rights in endeavoring to protect the interests of the men on trial for conspiracy as a result of the leasing of the teapot Dome naval oil reserve by Albert E. Fall to Sinclair.

Sinclair made general denial of any wrong-doing in employing detectives to shadow the jury, asserting he had done nothing that constituted a crime. He maintains that on the allegations set up by the government that the court was without jurisdiction to find him guilty of contempt.

DENIES INSTRUCTIONS
Day's answer denied he was instructed by Sinclair to hire detectives, "to spy upon, to bribe, intimidate or influence" the jurors.

Day said that he was "directed by Harry F. Sinclair to engage the service of William J. Burns International Detective agency; admitted that he was to supervise the activities and reports from diverse operatives of said detective agency, and furnished the same to Harry F. Sinclair if this respondent thought it necessary or advisable to do so."

The Sinclair official said he had no knowledge save hearsay that the Burns operatives investigated encumbrances upon the home of Jure Kern, as charged.

He admitted that operatives reported that Jure Glasscock was seen in conference with a person at a remote place outside of the city of Washington for a period of fifteen or twenty minutes. He had no knowledge that such a report was false as the government contended.

Day said he instructed the detectives that under no circumstances was any juror to be addressed or communicated with or approached.

ASK $170,000 FOR WORK ON FOX RIVER

Major Portion of Sum Will Be Used for Rebuilding Dam at De Pere

Approximately $170,000 will be made available for maintenance and improvement of the Fox river in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1928 if congress passes the rivers and harbors bill which includes estimates prepared by the army engineers. This money will be used for rebuilding the lower dam at De Pere at a cost of about $100,000 and for dredging and other wise maintaining and improving the river.

Other money for operation and care of the river will be provided by the war department as it is required from a fund set aside for that purpose. The secretary of war is empowered to draw from this fund as it is required for operation and care of completed canals and for paying salaries of lock-tenders and to carry out the work of keeping rivers open for navigation.

The rivers and harbors bill carries an estimate of $235,000 for improvement of the harbor in Green Bay and $420,000 for the harbor in Milwaukee. Other estimates in the Milwaukee district are: Menominee river and harbor, $5,000; Sturgeon Bay and Lake Michigan ship canal, $125,000; Kewaunee harbor, $55,900; Two Rivers harbor, $12,000; Port Washington harbor, $4,000; Racine harbor, $29,000; Kenosha harbor, $29,000.

A total of $55,856,310 was recommended for next year but this does not include the $10,000,000 that is allotted each year for the Mississippi River commission.

FARMER DIES AFTER ACCIDENT IN WOODS

Believe Joseph Pingle Fell from Wagon and Fractured Skull After Stroke

Black Creek—Joseph Pingle, 61, died at 9:30 Saturday evening at his home in the town of Bovina, as the result of either an accident or stroke while he was alone in the woods about three-quarter mile from his home Saturday afternoon. Mr. Pingle left home in the afternoon with his team of horses, and about 3:30 the animals returned to the farm without their driver.

Search was started immediately and Mr. Pingle was found unconscious by his son Walter, about 25. He failed to regain consciousness. It is believed he suffered a stroke and fell from the wagon, as his skull was fractured.

Mr. Pingle was born March 14, 1866, in Germany, and came to the United States in 1892. He occupied the Bovina farm for the last 25 years. Survivors are his widow and son Walter at home, and daughter, Alice of Milwaukee, and a sister at Cleveland.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the home. Burial will be made in the town of Black Creek cemetery.

ZIMMERMAN TO PROBE ATTACK AT FENNIMORE

Madison—(P)—The appeals of a sister will bear fruit in an investigation of Governor Zimmerman and representatives of the attorney general's office in the mystery which veils the attack upon Charles Linka, 17-year-old Fennimore youth.

Charles who lies in the Madison General hospital, with crushed neck, broken cheek bones, and a vanished memory, was sent by his parents on Saturday noon about five weeks ago to the town of Fennimore to obtain a bag of grain. He stayed in a neighbors field, and with the farmer's permission, picked up a sack of corn. That is the last he remembers. The following afternoon two little girls found him lying in the field.

Police Of Midwest Hunt Loot Of Huge Crime Trust

Chicago—(P)—Loot valued at $2,000,000 stolen during the last year by a highway-organized "crime trust," Monday was the object of an intensive search by police of this and other midwest cities.

The kidnaping and subsequent release of Morris Roisner of St. Paul, Minn., led to revelations of the activities of the "crime trust." Roisner was kidnaped by gangsters last Thursday and held until Saturday for $75,000 ransom.

Roisner had been tortured but was released, he said, when his captors learned the police were on their trail. Several reputed members of the gang were arrested after he told his story. The kidnaped man, and Charles Greenleaf of Chicago, and his associate, according to Michel Grapin,

SMITH, VARE DENIED SEATS BY SENATORS

Illinois and Pennsylvania Senators - elect Will Be Heard Tuesday

LONGWORTH REELECTED

Blaine and La Follette May Bolt Party With Others of Western Group

Washington—(P)—A new session of congress, born with every promise of a career of discord and political insurgency, opened Monday with a curtain raiser in which William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, and Frank L. Smith of Illinois, were denied, at least temporarily, the senate seats to which they aspire.

When they presented themselves to take the oath of office the two senators-elect were stopped by a resolution presented by Senator Norris of Nebraska, declaring them unfit to sit in the senate because of the scandal surrounding their primary campaigns. It was agreed to postpone further action until Tuesday.

The senate also put off until later the election of its secretary and other officers, around which another storm is threatening. A western Republican insurgent group of five, including Senator Blaine and LaFollette of Wisconsin, who want guarantees as to farm relief and other legislative subjects, still was deliberating Monday afternoon whether to bolt the Republican state of senate officers, and turn a majority to the Democrats.

The senate remained in session only 35 minutes after Vice President Dawes had rapped his gavel at noon, and the leaders will attempt overnight conference to smooth out some of their differences in private.

The house, which had no similar troubles, lingered much longer, electing Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, to the speakership, perfecting other details of its organization.

Longworth's election over Finnis J. Garrett of Tennessee, had been a foregone conclusion since the last general election when the Republicans maintained a safe majority in the house.

The speaker, who is a son-in-law of the late President Roosevelt, was without opposition in his own party. He first became the presiding officer of the house two years ago.

The vote was 225 for Longworth, and 187 for Garrett. Five members voted present.

The oath of office was withheld temporarily from Representative-elect James M. Beech of Pennsylvania, whose eligibility was questioned on the ground that he is not a citizen of Pennsylvania.

Upon motion of Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, Beck, chosen for the seat held last session by William S. Vare, stood aside while other members of the Pennsylvania delegation were sworn in. Garrett promised that withholding the oath at present would not prejudice Beck's case before the house.

WELCOMES INSURGENTS
Representative Butler, Republican, Pennsylvania, one of the house leaders, administered the oath to Mr. Longworth, who thanked his colleagues and said he was glad to welcome back to the party fold the representatives who bolted in 1924 to support LaFollette.

As soon as other members of the Pennsylvania delegation had been sworn in, Chairman Snell of the rules committee, offered a motion to administer the oath to Beck over Garrett's protest. The Democratic leader countered with a motion to refer Beck's case to the election committee.

On an oral vote, the speaker held Garrett's motion was lost. Garrett then demanded a roll call, which began shortly. Beck was stated after the house by a vote of 245 to 157 had rejected representative Garrett's motion to withhold administering the oath to the former selector general of the United States, pending investigation of his case by an election committee.

CONVENE AT NOON
Vice-President Dawes rapped for order in the senate exactly when the hands of the senate clock came together at noon. As usual the function of opening the house session fell to William Tyler Page, the house clerk, who presided pending the election of the speaker.

Vare and Smith, whose right to sit in the senate is contested because of their campaign expenditures, were both on the floor when the senate came to order. Vare had come in with Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, and Smith with Senator Deneen of Illinois.

The members of both houses bowed their heads as the champions offered their opening invocation. Immediately afterward, in the house, the roll or states was called, a ceremony occupying a half hour.

CASE LAID OVER
When their names were called, Smith and Vare were asked to stand aside for the present, and Senator Norris called resolutions to bar them from office. Their case was put over until Tuesday, without prejudice, and the session of the senate adjourned.

The senate adjourned at 1:30 p.m. (Turn to page 21, Col. 4)

NEGRO KNIFES MAN TO DEATH AT BELOIT

Slashes Companion in Alleged Bootleg Den — E u d e s Search by Officers

Beloit—(P)—Willard Woods, 32, is dead in a Beloit hospital as the result of knife wounds and a Negro by the name of Brown is being sought by police.

Brown, according to witnesses, slashed Woods' neck, severing the jugular vein; slashed his left side, exposing one lung, and gashed his cheeks. He escaped immediately after the murder, which took place Saturday night in an alleged bootlegging establishment in South Beloit, Ill. Woods, brought to a Beloit hospital, died at 8:30 Monday morning. An argument over a woman was the cause of the murder, police were told.

Willard Woods' hands were behind him and his coat partly off, the Negro leaped on him with a knife and slashed him, witnesses said. He had just started to take off his coat, evidently to strike the Negro, when he was attacked, the police were told.

Woods was immediately rushed to a Beloit hospital, while Brown escaped. Police immediately started a search for him, but up to 10 o'clock Monday morning had no trace of him. They had but a meager description on which to base their search.

Woods' arms also were slashed by the Negro, hospital authorities said.

REMUS REFUSES TO TAKE STAND IN OWN DEFENSE

Cheimnaff, O.—(P)—George Remus, the former "king of bootleggers," served notice upon Judge Chester R. Shook at the renewal of his murder trial Monday that he would not testify in his own behalf.

Remus was addressing the court in connection with a motion he had made to investigate what he termed libelous statements in a news story sent a New York newspaper last week. Remus asked that the court respondent who filed the story be cited for contempt of court. He asserted to Judge Shook that no statement of defendant had made since the opening of the trial could be questioned.

"I now wish to apologize," he said, and the prosecution for one promise I made, however," rapped Remus in a voice which indicated he had thrown off the effects of a heavy cold. "This defendant will not take the witness stand."

WASHINGTON THINKS LA FOLLETTE GRIP ON STATE IS GONE

Defeat by Conservatives Last Saturday Believed to Be Beginning of End

Washington, D. C. — Election in Wisconsin of two conservative members of the Republican national committee was construed here Monday by regular Republicans as indicative of the breaking of the La Follette grip on the party organization in that state. For the first time in 20 years Wisconsin will be represented on the national committee by members antagonistic to the La Follette leadership.

Senator La Follette declined to comment on the incident for publication, intimating that he might have something to say within a few days.
Other members of the La Follette following pronounced the incident without significance.

"I don't know how it happened," said one of these. "Either some of our members of the state committee were deserted us. In any event, no significant attaches to the matter." The progressive Republicans who for years followed the leadership of the late Senator La Follette are stronger than ever in Wisconsin.

"REAL TEST IN JUNE"

"The two Wisconsin members of the national committee resigned in 1924 when Senator La Follette headed the third party. The vacancies were filled by the state committee, which is composed of members selected by congressional districts at the last platform state convention. The progressive controlled the platform convention, but the makeup of the state committee by congressional districts made the division between progressives and conservatives extremely close.

"In any event, the two members of the national committee elected Saturday will serve only till the national convention next June. Then two members will be elected by the Wisconsin delegation. If the La Follette progressives control the Wisconsin delegation, La Follette members of the national committee will be elected.
Otherwise, conservative members will be chosen. That is going to be the real test of control as between the La Follette progressives and the conservatives.

SEE BEGINNING OF END

According to the regular Republicans, the triumph of the conservatives in the election of these two national committeemen is the beginning of the end of La Follette domination of Wisconsin. They say that the La Follette hold on the state has been shipping ever since the death of "Fighting Bob." The first blow was the defeat of Ekern for the nomination for governor. That revealed the extent of the disaffection in the ranks of the La Folletteites, and since that time the dissension is said to have increased.

Whether Senator La Follette will be able to hold together the various party elements which his father welded together is a matter of speculation. His leadership will be put to the test next year, when he will be a candidate to succeed himself. If he wins he will establish his right to the leadership he inherited. If he loses, it will be evidence that the La Follette regime is doomed.

from the state committee, signed by W. H. "Dad" Wones, state boys' work secretary and director general of the meeting. In his letter Mr. Wones said

BANK INSTALLS BOX FOR NIGHT DEPOSITS

A night depository for the convenience of theatre owners, retail store keepers, filling stations and churches has been installed at the Citizens National bank. The new depository cost $2,500 and may be used by any of the bank customers. The entrance to the depository is on the Oneida-st side of the bank building. A half cylinder, when lifted up permits a person to deposit his money on it and it dumps the bag down a chute into a burglar proof vault. The vault has an acetylene torch proof door. The vault is incased in six inch reinforced concrete.

WIDOW CONFESSES MATE WAS MURDERED

Mother of Four Admits Paramour Killed Husband to Cover Up Love Affair

Haynesville, La., (P)—Mrs. Effie
Jowers, 43, mother of four children, and J. E. Swift, 45, a soft drink salesman and alleged paramour of Mrs.
Jowers, were charged Monday with slaying J. E. Jowers, 55, storekeeper, ex-minister and husband of Mrs.
Jowers. Mrs. Jowers confessed Sunday, according to W. D. Coff, district attorney, that on the night of Oct. 31, she held a lamp while Swift, using a sledge hammer, struck and killed her sleeping husband so that an illicit love affair between the two conspirators might be continued.

After killing Jowers, Swift is said to have taken the body in his automobile to a point 25 miles away where he weighed it with a hundred pounds of scrap iron and dropped it into a creek.

Mrs. Jowers reported to police that her husband had disappeared from home. The Sunday following the murder, Sheriff John Coleman called on
Mrs. Jowers to extend his sympathy.
He found her varnishing floors and noticed several dark stains on the wood. Two days later, while Mrs.
Jowers was in Camden, Ark., Coleman obtained shavings from the floor of the Jowers home. Under chemical tests these shavings revealed bloodstains.

There are a few trees which behave exactly like weeds and answer to the botanical definition. One of these is the silver poplar, which often comes up in rubbish heaps.

Burn Power Co. Coke In Domestic Heating Equipment

And Secure the Utmost Results

For house heating furnaces, Power Co. Improved Coke is the ideal fuel but it is very sensitive to firing methods, giving splendid heating satisfaction when burned properly and considerably less, under thoughtless treatment. The following rules for burning Power Co. Improved Coke will give you the maximum results.

Starting Fire:

Cover bare grate with layer of about two inches of Coke, preferably omitting the finer sizes in the pile.
On top, start wood fire, using small kindling with cross section approximately one inch square. Fill the furnace to the door with wood. Use all the available draft, and admit air over the fire. When wood is burning good, check draft and build up fuel bed.

Carrying The Heating Load:

The fuel bed should be carried as thick or deep as possible, say 18 inches. This depth is limited by the draft available the finer the coke, the less the depth.
Great care should be taken in adjusting the air flow through the bed. To obtain the proper flow, make use of all the dampers, opening the check draft on the stack as little as possible, as it draws the warm air out of the cellar. Unadjustable openings admitting the air into the ash pit, should be stopped up. In general, it is unnecessary to admit air over the fire by means of the damper on the door, sufficient air coming in from the leakage and the opening through the fuel bed. In shaking down the ash, do it slowly. The shaking should be done as infrequently as possible—usually in the morning and evening. An inch or two of ash left on the grate will protect it and also help check the draft on low ratings. It is best not to disturb the fuel bed.

Banking:

Shake the grate and build up the fuel bed as high as possible, using the finer sizes of Coke. Check draft.
Only a very small opening admitting air under the fire is required. Tap it down a little after firing, if it burns too fast.

Special Notes:

To the user Coke, will seem to require less draft than hard coal. Where relatively high ratings on a furnace are required to carry the load, trouble may be experienced from clinkers. It may be necessary to pull them out of firing door. This is best accomplished after a period of banking, as in the morning. To boost the fire quickly, an ordinary house electric fan may be used, setting it to blow air into the ash pit. It should be removed however, before a temperature is created that would melt the ash to form clinker.

Coke from the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.'s new plant, is made under an improved process. It is a fuel that will give you satisfactory heating results in the coldest weather, it is clean and handled without crumbling, avoiding waste.

Following local fuel dealers sell this IMPROVED COKE. If you have never used Coke, a trial will convince you of its superiority. You can have immediate delivery in any quantity.

NOVEMBER WEATHER WAS ABOVE NORMAL

Temperature and Rainfall
Were Above Usual Amount;
Had Much Sunshine

November weather proved that Mother Nature can be normal if she so wishes, according to figures compiled by D. B. Whittier, Green Bay meteorologist. The average temperature for the month was 44.8 degrees, about 3 degrees above normal. Total rainfall was 2.22 inches, .36 inches above normal.

The highest temperature during the month was 67 degrees, on the 1st and 11th, which is but four degrees below the absolute record for November, which occurred in 1924. The lowest temperature during the month, 14 degrees on the 19th, is by no means unusual, as the November record is twelve degrees below zero, in 1887.

While measurable precipitation fell on 13 days, more than half of the total amount for the month fell on the 14th and 15th, when 1.40 inches fell in 24 hours. Snow fell to a total amount of 1.4 inches, of which 1.0 inch fell on the 8th. None of it remained for any time.

The month was somewhat more cloudy than usual, with the average cloudiness totalling 78 per cent, against a November normal of 72 per cent. The sunshine averaged 33 per cent of the possible, whereas the normal for November is 41 per cent. There were but four clear days, and for partly cloudy days, the other twenty-two being cloudy.

Electrical phenomena were scarce, there being but two thunderstorms, and no auroras. A faint solar halo on the 30th was the only optical phenomenon recorded. Fog prevailed much of the time from the evening of the 26th to the afternoon of the 28th, there being but three of the intervening days without fog, and the fog becoming dense for extended periods on the 21st, 22nd, and 28th.

The prevailing wind was south, though north, northwest and west winds were frequent during the month. South is the usual prevailing November wind. The average hourly velocity was 11.3 miles, slightly above as normal of 10.7 miles. The highest "gust" recorded during the month

OLD ARTIST DOESN'T LIKE "MODERN" ENGLISH GIRL

London—(AP)—After an absence of some years, Professor John Philipp, German portrait painter, has returned to London and would like to put the clock back.

In an interview the professor urged London girls to throw away cigarettes, hide their knees, cease bobbing and shingling their hair. He laments that the present ways are making the "real English girl type" disappear.

Professor Philipp was full of praise for city men in tail coats and big hats. He feels that only the upperclass women look aristocratic in evening dress.

SHOW INTEREST IN NEW ORDINANCES

Many Suggestions Show Sincerity and Thought, Alderman Richard Says

Numerous suggestions for changes in city ordinances have been received by the special committee of the city council in charge of ordinance revision, according to Alderman George Richard, chairman. Not only has the response been better than was expected, but the suggestions show that some time has been spent on them and that people are sincere in their intentions.

"The committee still is open to further suggestions," Mr. Richards said Wednesday, "and because numerous replies have been received is no reason why others should not be forwarded. In making suggestions persons are asked to remember that the committee has no power to draft ordinances, only suggest. Only the common council has the power to create new ordinances so that all suggestions coming before the committee must be submitted to that body for adoption."

Actual revision of ordinances was started a year ago. Attorney L. Hugo Keller is revisor, carrying on his work under the direction of the city attorney.

Federal Reserve Banks Show Increase In Year

Washington—(AP)—Increase of totals loans and investments of Federal Reserve Banks to a new high of $21,119,264,000 for October appears to be the natural outcome of a fairly steady growth this year.

Except during February, July and August loans and investments have increased about $200,000 monthly. The previous high was in September of this year, $20,829,830. In 1926 the October total was $18,781,537.

The increase is regarded as seasonal although in greater volume than ever before.

MUST USE PARTITION IN LIVE STOCK CARS

Madison—(AP)—The attention of humane officers throughout the state is called by O. A. Stolen, state humane agent, to an amendment passed by the last legislature, which requires railway companies to furnish suitable partitions for mixed cars of livestock throughout the year, instead of during only the month of February, as the statute originally provided.

Under the original law, Mr. Stolen says, the shipper was required to furnish and install the partitions at his own expense, but the railroad commission has now ordered that the carrier shall furnish the partition, and that it may not charge more than one dollar for each partition, the shipper to furnish the wire, chains or rope to fasten them.

Mr. Alfred C. Bosser, members of the special council committee besides Mr. Richard are Aldermen C. D. Thompson and Mark Catlin.

Revision of the zoning ordinance was started first and as soon as it is completed other ordinances will receive attention.

CHILD CAUGHT COLD -PNEUMONIA FEARED

Worried Mother Grateful as Clinic Shows How to Give Quick Relief at Home

A safe, sure method of treating colds—so pleasant children love it—now being recommended for home use by physicians because of its splendid record in hospital, private practice and in so many Appleton homes.

Vast numbers of mothers here have found that it brings the same quick, sure and lasting relief that came to little Estelle, eight-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Walker. She caught a severe cold while out playing on a drizzly day. Next morning her chest was tight, nose stopped up and temperature was high. By noon congestion was settling in her bronchial tubes.

Mrs. Walker called her doctor. He immediately ordered the child to bed and prescribed hourly doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of ingredients which hospitals have found to be the quickest, safest and surest to end colds. With the very first pleasant swallow she felt its comforting, healing warmth—from her nose passages deep down into her chest. Relief began immediately and in a day or so all traces of the cough and cold were gone.

Note: See other cases reported daily—all certified to this paper by the physician who treated each particular case.

Doctors find that this hospital medicine does far more than stop coughing instantly. It goes straight to the seat of a stubborn head cold or chest cold. Absorbed through and through the whole system, it quickly checks phlegm, heals irritation and drives out the cold from the nose passages, throat and bronchial tubes.

Even sick children love the flavor—and mothers who have once tried Cherry Pectoral have been delighted to find that it keeps the whole family free from colds and catches all winter, if used according to the hospital directions in each carton. Endorsed by Schmitt Bros. Co. and all leading druggists.

ANOTHER INDORSES PLANS FOR SAFETY

Finance Company Manager Says Work of the Kiwanis Clubs Is Worthy Effort

Menasha—R. E. Sanders, manager of the Neenah-Menasha Finance company, calls attention to the danger of using the public highways and to the necessity of doing everything possible to lessen the number of accidents particularly among children. He indorses the safety first campaign of the Twin City Kiwanis clubs and says it is a noteworthy effort in the right direction.

Mr. Sanders letter follows: "The development of the automobile and its widespread use by such a large number of people has, within the last few years, made it distinctly dangerous to use the public highways. Because of its silence, speed and power, the automobile is potentially a weapon of destruction. The increasing number of people who are crippled, or killed in automobile accidents emphasizes the importance of doing everything possible to lessen this danger. The safety first program of the Twin City Kiwanis clubs is a noteworthy effort to fight this menace.

"When so many adults are injured it is little to be wondered at that children, who are ordinarily less cautious, should be in considerable danger in using the streets. The efforts to educate them in the schools to recognize this danger and by following a few simple rules to greatly lessen the possibility of accident, is a most commendable precaution.

"The impulsive tendency of children to dart quickly into the street, often from between parked cars, has caused many a driver to lose a heart beat or two. If, in addition, his brakes are not properly adjusted, an injury or fatality is hard to avoid.

"While the school can do much in this campaign, yet it is vitally important that it be supplemented and reinforced by the home. Every parent should teach their children that the streets are dangerous and that they must always be careful when using them.

"The Secretary of State estimates that there are approximately 700,000 cars in use in Wisconsin. Each year there has been a large increase in the number of car owners, indicating even greater traffic hazards in the future. For this reason it is especially important that all good citizens give their whole hearted support to those movements whose object is greater safety."

ERECT COMMUNITY TREE IN PUBLIC TRIANGLE

Menasha—For several years the Community club has provided the tree with a community Christmas tree which has become a prominent position in the public triangle. This year the club has been presented with one by Walter Telley, Dr. Priest, who brought it down from northern Michigan. The tree was set up Monday by city employees and has been decorated with colored lights.

CHANGE BOWLING HOUR

Menasha—The Eagles Bowling league will hold at 8 o'clock, Tuesday night instead of 6 o'clock on account of the change in the game for the benefit of the Neenah-Menash Athletic football team.

LABOR HEAD ASKS HIGH WAGE LEVEL

"Keep Up Present Standard," Secretary Davis Asks in Annual Report

Washington—(AP)—In prosperity and happiness the "American people" so stand as to be the subject of admiration and study the world over," Secretary Davis declared Sunday in the annual report of the labor department. He called for maintenance of high wages and welfare, for control of immigration, and for modification of anti-trust laws to allow the condition he described to be maintained by the "While we take into account the splendid life of plenty and peace we enjoy," the labor secretary said, "we must not suppose that all is perfect with us. The distribution of our national wealth is good, but it is not perfect.

"No matter on what plea or excuse, reduction of wages is bad business and worse economics. The time has passed when any industry or employer who seeks to break down wage scales will be looked upon by the community as shrewd or clever in industry. . . . It is the mutual willingness of the worker to produce and the employer to pay for production that accounts in large measure for our present prosperity. It has crowded the home market with millions of ready consumers and buyers; it has stocked that market with an infinite variety of goods for improving their standard of living."

Mr. Davis declared that the "simple secret of the national prosperity" in the maintenance of high production and high wages had resulted in cessation of strike activity, and predicted that this condition would continue.

"Never before in the history of American industry has the country witnessed such a degree of general harmony between workers and employer," he said. "This attitude of mutual respect, good will and partnership is growing in the country."

The labor department head mentioned the business and coal mining industry "as one industry that lags behind others in living up to American standards of organization and business administration," remarking on

CORNERSTONE WILL HELP FUTURE ARCHEOLOGISTS

Paris—(AP)—Archeologists of the future, probing into the remains of what was once the city of Paris, will have little difficulty in identifying the American Church of Paris and in ascertaining the exact date of its erection.

In a hermetically sealed glass tube contained in a leaden case which has been placed in the cornerstone of the new edifice of the American Church now under construction in the Quai d'Orsay, has been deposited a document intended as a guide for historians as yet unborn. It has written upon it the name and description of the church in more than a dozen languages, including English, French, German, Italian, Spanish, Russian, Greek, Hebrew, Latin and Syriac.

The exact date of the church's cornerstone laying is stated in letters and characters of every type now known to man. It is moreover given in relation to every type of known chronology, not only those in actual use such as the Christian Era, the Hebrew, the Mohammedan, etc., but also in terms of those which passed into disuse centuries ago.

A scheme is being considered for heating the entire city of Reykjavik, capital of Iceland, by water from subterranean hot springs. There are 29 volcanoes on the island, 7 of them still active, including the famous geysers.

TEACHERS USING GRADED METHODS FOR ARITHMETIC

Fundamentals and Corrective Drills Bring Good Results, Younger Says

Mechanics, problem solving, reasoning drills for remedial work, vocabulary lists, and neatness are the five significant factors in the teaching of arithmetic in the grades and junior high schools of Appleton, according to F. B. Younger, principal of McKinley junior high school, who is in charge of that work in the schools.

Teachers in the grades are working to bring the child up to standard in fundamental processes—addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division. The objective is to know how to use the working tools of number. The second part of this program is to give the pupils definite training in reasoning through problem solving.

The fundamentals of arithmetic are taught after the Cleveland Survey arithmetic test, from one, has been given to determine the weaknesses of the class and individual as well. This test gives the teacher an opportunity of diagnosing the pupils' work and determines the kind of remedial work to be given.

Corrective drills by Dr. W. Osborn of the state department of public instruction have been inaugurated in the second, third and fourth grades this year, Mr. Younger said. These drills are a series of graded exercises arranged in order of increasing difficulty with definite methods for clearing up errors in remedial work. The Clapp drill book, by Dr. Frank Clapp of the education department of the University of Wisconsin, is being used by the fifth and sixth grades in their drill work. The object of the drill is to test, analyze, study, diagnose, and finally give remedial work.

The Buckingham Scales for problem solving is given to determine the weaknesses and needed places for remedial work. Sets of exercises from the second grade through the ninth grade are then made out. Problem solving drills to be used for remedial work will be worked out by the teachers and compiled at the close of the year.

Graded arithmetic vocabulary lists are a new feature in teaching arithmetic. At the beginning of the year a series of tests were given the various grades in which the lack of understanding certain terms used in fundamentals and mechanics of arithmetic, such as quotient, multiplication, and divisor, was most apparent. Vocabulary lists, pertinent to the arithmetic studied in each grade, will be compiled and must be mastered by each pupil, said Mr. Younger.

REVISE SERVICE ON NAVAL C. O. D. MAIL

A revision in postal service between United States naval vessels to become effective Jan. 1, 1928, has been announced by the postal department and a bulletin giving details received by the Appleton Postoffice.

By the new ruling C. O. D. service between ships will be discontinued, the authorities finding that comparatively few articles have been sent in that manner and that other means of reception may be successfully devised.

Collect parcels intended for persons connected with establishments or naval receiving ships permanently located at bases will be received for mailing addressed to the United States money order postoffice where the naval land establishments are located.

LEGION EMBLEMS TO MARK CITY ENTRANCE

Madison—(P)—Signs which Wisconsin American Legion posts plan to place on all highways at entrances to cities and villages probably will not be installed until next spring, according to Spencer A. Lucas, commander of the Madison post.

The Wisconsin highway commission has given the legion permission to erect the signs and has adopted them as the official markers.

It is also being planned to place caution signs at all school houses throughout the state, according to Mr. Lucas.

The signs at city and village boundaries will state the name of the place, give the population, and carry the legend "Drive slowly. Protect (name of town) children."

The signs will be about two feet in diameter, of metal, and will resemble the official legion emblem. They will cost about ten dollars apiece, and will be purchased by local posts.

GOVERNMENT ASKS DATA FOR AIRPORT

Will Send Sketch of Field When They Receive Data on Surrounding Land

Several booklets and maps containing information on airports have been received at the chamber of commerce from the aeronautical division of the United States department of commerce and the department has sent the chamber a questionnaire on the airport situation here. The department requested chamber officers to send a map of Appleton and vicinity, plotting the possible locations of an airport and also a closeup sketch of the field drawn to scale and showing the fields, obstructions and facilities.

The questionnaire which the chamber must return to the department of commerce asks information on the name of the field, class, description, obstructions, markings and identifications, lighting, accommodations, communication and signal equipment and meteorological data. When the data and map is secured by the department it makes a bulletin of the material with a sketch of the field on the cover and sends it to all chambers of the country. Hugh G. Corbett, chamber secretary already has received the sketches of fields in several other cities, including Madison, where an airport is in operation.

The information sent to the local chamber contains a map of the "AAA" airport as contemplated by the new air commerce regulations of the department of commerce, a copy of air commerce regulations and a map of all large airlines of the country, showing the lighted, non-lighted and the unlighted non-mail plane routes.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR CRIMINALS

Since New York passed the Baumes law imposing life imprisonment upon any person convicted for the fourth time of a felony, there has been a great exodus of criminals not only out of the state but into law-abiding vocations. The law was drastic and compelling. It cut off all possible avenue of escape. Courts had no alternative. They were required to impose life imprisonment in the cases mentioned. It is the sensible way to handle a class who cannot be reformed. When men have been brought four consecutive times before the bar of justice for the commission of a felony or state's prison crime, where do they belong if not in prison?

Yet this law, like every other law, will peter out and amount to nothing unless it is enforced. Generally speaking it is the certainty of conviction more than the severity of the sentence that deters men from avenues of crime. But when severity can be added to certainty crimes will be reduced to a minimum. We have no reference to severity merely for the purpose of cruelty, but severity only in keeping with the nature of the animal with which the law has to deal. Laws of the nature of the Baumes law affect for the most part the professional criminal class, those who make it a business to rob, to steal, to defraud; mostly the commission of offenses accompanied either with violence or the threat of violence.

Ghastly experience has taught the people of New York that a gun or bludgeon in the hands of a cocaine driven criminal generally chalks up a funeral. When a man has already been convicted three times of state's prison offenses and has served his various sentences, and willfully goes back to the same detestable business, it is quite time that the state used a little common sense in handling him. It is time that the public was protected from him. It is time that the conclusion is reached that it is not safe to permit him at large at all. One of the finest things about the situation in New York is the evidence of development of a community after a long period of lawlessness. There was a time when New York occupied the unsavory position now held by Chicago, when criminal classes ran wild because they had the protection of politicians, and the people elected the politicians notwithstanding their dishonest tendencies. But New York learned its lesson, just as, in time, the people of Chicago will learn theirs. It is a noteworthy fact that London, today one of the cities most free of crime, was only a hundred years ago occupying the position now held by Chicago. But its people bestirred themselves and found that human nature is not given over to crime unless crime is made profitable.

It is not only the spirit of progress that has taken its way westward but the spirit of crime has followed in its wake, due not to the viciousness of the people residing thereabouts, but almost wholly to the fact that the electors have failed primarily in casting honest ballots. If you follow the beast through the jungle you will find that crime starts when voters elect misfits to office, for crime could not exist a day even in a large city without the aid of a corrupt political condition.

ENGLISH TEMPERANCE

The United Kingdom Temperance alliance reports less drinking in England. For the last three months of the year 1926-7 the people spent $20,000,000 less than for the same period of the year 1925-6. That is not much out of a total of considerably over a billion dollars, but the tendency is the main thing. The alliance believes it will continue, being especially in demand in connection with strong liquor. If the drinking of spirits should be reduced to the extent of 80,000 gallons a year it would make a difference in the salary of the British people, even if they still drink wine at about the old rate.

Americans will be interested in this postscript to the report referred to: "Attention is called to the 'undoubted economic success' of prohibition in the United States, and it is regarded by the alliance as conclusively established that in areas where licenses have been reduced or wholly eradicated there is always a transfer from unproductive to productive expenditures, with marked enhancement of the standard of living." In other words, where the liquor traffic is outlawed, even if prohibition is not fully effective, the people spend their money more thriftily and are better off. Most Americans do not seem to realize that the marked prosperity of our country in recent years, compared with the rest of the world, may be largely due to this factor.

DAWES STILL TO BE CONSIDERED

Chicago newspapers are taking the view that General Dawes' announcement that he is not a candidate for president and that he is for the nomination of former Governor Lowden of Illinois eliminates him from the contest. We think this is a premature conclusion, warranted neither by the facts nor by the ever-shifting scenes in the political game. General Dawes does not say he will not accept the nomination if it is tendered to him. He puts himself somewhat in Mr. Coolidge's position in his apparent wish to make the public understand that he will not actively seek the honor.

We are not sure but what General Dawes has profited more by the incident than the recipient of his indorsement. It was obviously up to either Dawes or Lowden to retire from the race before the convention in order not to split the Illinois delegation and the support of the Mid-west. The stronger man of the two is the first to offer to make the sacrifice. It is, to our mind, a generous and prompt recognition of a mutually due courtesy.

Dawes is still to be reckoned with. He is quite as strong with the farmer and Mid-west vote as Lowden, notwithstanding the latter has been doing a tremendous amount of talking on the subject of farm relief. Dawes' influence was strongly felt in the last congress in favor of the McNary-Haugen bill, and in the background he was considerable of a factor in securing its passage. He is too big a figure in the Republican party to fade from the picture by self-renunciation. Undeniably he is more acceptable to the East than Lowden, which in itself keeps him in the limelight despite anything he may say, or the boosters of Lowden may do. He was one of the chief contenders for the nomination and will remain so.

NATIONAL WEALTH

The American people are said to be making $10,000,000,000 a year more than it costs them to live—and they live pretty well, too, as compared with the international average. That is perhaps 10 billions out of 90, which figures up to about 11 per cent annual gain—a very thrifty rate. It would pay off our whole national debt in two years, or less.

Let it continue for 10 years, and it would add 100 billions to our store of wealth. In 100 years it would add 1,000 billions, making Uncle Sam the first trillionaire. But by that time, the rate of increase will probably be larger. Uncle Sam may then be a multi-trillionaire. Nobody can estimate the future wealth of this fortunate country, if we continue sensible, keep the peace, work and save.

OLD MASTERS

This world is all a fleeting show,
For man's illusion given;
The smiles of joy, the tears of woe,
Deceitful shine, deceitful flow,
There's nothing true but Heaven!
And false the light on glory's flame,
As fading hues of even;
And love and hope, and beauty's bloom
Are blossoms gathered for the tomb—
There's nothing bright but Heaven!
Poor wanderers of a stormy day,
From wave to wave we're driven,
And fancy's flash and reason's ray
Serve but to light the troubled way—
There's nothing calm but Heaven!

WHEN FOLKS GROW DEAF

With great strength of purpose we refrained from entitling this talk "Catarhial Deafness." You see, there is no such state or malady as "catarrh," so it would be silly to call anything "catarrhial," wouldn't it? Still, a form of chronic disease of the middle ear producing more or less impairment of hearing is so commonly called "catarrhial deafness" that it is difficult to make clear to lay readers what we are talking about if we do not use the familiar name. This difficulty we hope to surmount. The point in this meticulous avoidance of the familiar name, too. We mean to set victims of the catarrh obsession thinking, and perhaps, who knows, even stimulate a little of this unwelcome activity on the medical brethren, particularly that branch of the profession practicing in the field of otology, diseases of the ear.

I would not imply that ear specialists never think. Most of them think a little, now and then, but with all due respect for earnest striving in a most barren and formidable territory, it does seem to me that ear specialists do less thinking than any other class of medical men. Nervous specialists probably do the most thinking of all practitioners, in fact they do much too much thinking, I think, and nothing much else. Ear specialists are at the other end of this list in doing much too much meddling, and so seldom think it over seriously.
Now this brings us to an exceedingly delicate situation. Heaven forbid that I should say one word or give one hint to discourage or retard the progress in this lagged science of otology, or worse still encourage sufferers from ear disease to postpone or avoid any necessary or advisable surgical treatment. But we can't turn aside now. We've deliberately ventured so far that we must plunge in, hoping we may emerge with a clean conscience.
Remember, old subscribers, how I used to teach that it was well to wait, say, 48 hours, when one had appendicitis, before submitting to operation? Well, I did teach that foolishness, until I had appendicitis myself, and the instant I realized I had it I reformed, hurried to the operating table as quickly as they'd let me get on, and now I know that safety first and comfort all the time are best assured by immediate operation when any one is stricken with that treacherous disease. I mention this in order to indicate that I am not prejudiced against surgery. In case of doubt, if I'm the patient, my general motto is "Me for the knife, bring on the other."

It is my inexpert opinion that the ear specialists puncture too many ear drums and do too many mastoid operations. It seems to me that the field of otology is particularly cursed with a plague of born specialists, ambitious but really lazy young touts who come fresh and raw from medical school and internship, and the practice of otology, without wasting any of their precious time in building a foundation for their careers in the hard experience of general practice. I am sure that if these born specialists that infest otology could have the steady influence of 10 years of family practice, before they muster the audacity to limit their practice to diseases of the ear, they would not puncture so many ear drums nor break into so many mastoid cells as they do.
This does not imply that incision of the ear drum is not a conservative precaution in many cases of acute gathering or abscess in the ear, nor that mastoid operations are not necessary and life saving. It is merely a protest against shortcut specialism.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What is the cure of bunion you referred to in a recent talk? Does it require taking an anesthetic? Does an operation on a bunion leave one lame in any way? (K. C. R.)
Answer—In an established bunion the only cure is the surgical removal of the heads or portions of the heads of the dislocated and thickened bones. This requires an anesthetic, and necessarily lays the patient up for about two weeks (off the feet). The operation usually gives good functional results and no apparent lameness. In more recent cases, when the condition has not been too long neglected, much relief, sometimes cure, may be obtained by simply adopting same shoes and forswearing pointed soles and high heels. For the sores, when there is no sinus or running sore, occasionally paint the region with half strength tincture of iodine and keep dressed overnight with gauze moistened with alcohol or witch hazel.

The affirmative team was composed of Arnold Romig, Harold Hopkins and Albert Vogt; and the negative team, consisted of John Clark, R. W. Pringle and Louise Farnam.
Members of the Lawrence university football squad were to be entertained that evening at a dinner at 6 o'clock at the home of Prof. John Sylvester. A captain for the season of 1903 was to be elected. Allen Boyden and Herbeck were candidates for the position.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Jones returned from a visit in Chicago with friends.

TEN YEARS AGO
Monday, Dec. 3, 1917

America had lost 1,334 men since it entered the war, it was reported by the war department. The report covered every branch of the army, national guard, national army and the regular army here and in France. Since April 6 1,334 soldiers had died from all causes, 55 had been wounded and 11 had been captured or reported missing.
War expenses and maintaining and improving military establishments were to aggregate $12,581,337,929, according to estimates submitted to congress by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo that day.

A daughter was born the previous Saturday evening to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Schmitt, Rankin-st. Ministers of churches in Appleton, Kaukauna, Seymour and Kimberly met that morning at the Y. M. C. A. and perfected plans for the organization of Appleton Ministerial association. Officers elected were: President, W. D. Marsh; secretary and treasurer, Thomas W. Gales. The Committee appointed to draft a constitution consisted of George P. Werner, the Rev. Dean Upjohn and The Rev. D. W. Neugebauer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sommers were surprised by about 20 friends the previous Saturday at their home in the village of Mackville.
Officers for the coming year elected at a meeting of St. Joseph society the previous afternoon were: President, Moritz Heilmann; vice president, Frank Vetter; recording secretary, Henry E. Roemer; financial secretary, Oscar Nilsen; treasurer, John Kampen; trustee for three years, Michael Beck.

Whatever the may be said of Chicago, give credit where credit is due. The aims there are pretty good.

A GREAT IMPERSONATION

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

A WEEK-END THAT LOST A WAR

In "Gentleman Johnny Burgoyne," by F. J. Huddleston, there is set forth a curious bit of history about the American Revolution that seems to show that if the man who was at the head of the British war office had not been so anxious to spend a week-end in the country England might have very probably have won. The "night's" of history are always of course more diverting than important because under other conditions other things would have happened and the final result might have been the same. But the story is an illustration of great issues flowing from small occurrences.

This was the situation when General Burgoyne was about to leave England to "bring the American colonies to their senses." Lord George Germain was at the head of the war office. He gave Burgoyne instructions to march down from Canada southward along the Hudson for the purpose of "effecting a junction" with the army of General Howe who was encamped in New York. The definite understanding was that Howe be given orders "by the first packet" that sailed to break camp and march north along the Hudson. The two armies were to meet somewhere between New York and Canada and were to form an irresistible force that would crush the rebellion at a blow and bring the war to an end.

It was a very good plan and the military authorities on the American side saw the danger of such a union of Howe and Burgoyne. The fact that the failure of the plan is looked upon as the turning point of the Revolutionary war and that the capture of Burgoyne is listed as one of the 15 decisive battles of the world shows how important was the success of the campaign from the English point of view.

And yet the whole thing was wrecked for the English because Lord George Germain, a titled minicompo, wanted to spend a week-end in the country and did not care to keep his horses waiting for five minutes.

The instructions to Burgoyne had been drawn up, and a number of other documents in connection with the forthcoming campaign had been prepared by the secretaries in the English war office. Lord Germain had arranged to stop at the office while on his way to the country for a week-end.

A Labor Clubs' Brewery Society, Ltd., has been registered under the industrial provident act with a capital of 15,000 pounds. There are no individual share holders in the company, all the shares being held by the clubs.

At Preston the labor clubs have also laid plans to build their own brewery.

CAUSES OF BASHFULNESS

OFTEN CAN BE REMOVED

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Some people are abnormally bashful, modest or shy. Such people are likely to resent violently the insinuation that they feel themselves inferior.

It has been pointed out that a hunchback, a dwarf or a person with a clubfoot is not likely to be shy because his inferiority is obvious. The one who is abnormally shy is the one who feels inferior but is unwilling to admit it.

The boy in school who through some accident is stigmatized as a coward may be left with awkward shyness for the rest of his life. Sometimes these people are relieved by finding themselves under circumstances under which the majority of those present suffer fear.

COMMON CAUSES
In a consideration of the subject, some physicians point out that inability to play games well often causes a feeling of inferiority that persists into later life. A real or fancied change of physical attractiveness is a fairly common cause of shyness in men.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—With the first bite of winter the "pitch" men come flocking back to Broadway with their strange assortment of wares.
All through the warm weather they are birds of transit, flitting wherever the carnivals go. They are the individualists, the iconoclasts of the show racket. In the final analysis, their stock in trade is their quickness of wit and individual drawing power.
Heaven knows, they haven't much to offer that you can't find in any five and ten cent store.

Here is a fellow who tries to sell you a glass cutter. And who wants a glass cutter and what for? Here is another fellow who whangs a bit of wood on a slab to show you the efficacy of a particular sort of glue. He assures you that the house furniture and the broken crockery can be put together with the greatest ease if you but spend ten cents for the little square of cement he has for sale.

Here is a fellow with a trick thimble and another with a trick top that spins along a string. Here's another with a phoney X-ray device and still another with a package of needles, another with an assortment of cheap wrist watches at two-bits a piece—or something like that.

Nothing in the world that anyone could possibly want—and yet these fellows make their living at it. In a city like Manhattan they can ply their trade on Broadway, within a stone's throw of stores than offer every possible sort of article and trinket—and they can "clean up."

They are the artists of quick-and-basty merchandising. I have often wondered what these fellows would do were they to apply their talents to trading that ran into big money. They work with slight-of-hand tricks and "come-on" men, drawing their crowds by a sort of hypnotic activity and selling, seemingly, while everyone is properly hypnotized. I have often watched them for hours asking myself why—and, again, why. And generally winding up by buying the fool things myself and ambling down the street in a sort of daze, wondering what I was going to do with it.

Just now you'll see them scattered over the sidewalks of New York with everything from toy saxophones to rubber ducks. They'll be here as long as the snow flies and, with the first sun of spring, they will be off—like the birds heading for nest—perhaps the most colorful and amusing tradesmen to be found anywhere in this realm.

Speaking of odd ways of picking up a few dollars—there's the fellow who went about Manhattan in the wake of the stepladder or the human fly. He didn't as much as know the performer. But he would wait until the "jack" got well upon his perch, or the "fly" got well on his way up the building. Then he would go about passing the hat. The gathered crowd would assume, quite naturally, that he was associated with the performer and would drop dimes and quarters. The "mystery man" would then disappear to show up again at the next performance. He was making a comfortable fortune when someone uncovered his easy game.

The boys who like their stories in the "Nize Baby" vernacular are telling one about the partners who were trying to get a name for a new hotel. "Let's call it the Cloister," suggested the first.

"Vot's deez Cloister business. Vot does it mean?"
"Vot difference does dot mek? Ain't it cloister de subway?"

65 Given Degree By Foresters

A class of 65 candidates from Catholic Order of Foresters courts at Menasha, Appleton, Bear Creek, Freedom, Little Chute and two courts from Kaukauna, was initiated at a meeting Sunday afternoon at Elk hall at Kaukauna. Thirteen members of the Appleton court were included in the class. About 200 delegates and members from the various courts in the valley and several visitors attended the meeting.

The initiation was the result of membership campaign conducted by the various courts in the valley under the supervision of Louis T. Duffy, district supervisor. John A. Kuyper, of Depere, state chief ranger and Leo P. Fox of Chilton state secretary, exemplified the initiatory work and were assisted by members of the courts having candidates in the class. Those from Appleton who assisted with the work were Gustave Keller, Sr. and Henry Guckenberger.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

This is the third Monday article written from the viewpoint of the novice and designed to enable any one unfamiliar with bridge to acquire quickly and easily a knowledge of its fundamentals. Those who wish to follow this series should keep all the articles for ready reference and not skip a single chapter.

THE GAME OF AUCTION BRIDGE

Chapter 3. Rank of Bids.

After the deal has been completed, the next act in the game is to bid for the privilege of naming the trump (or No Trump) and of playing the Dummy hand. This bidding is called the "auction," the winning bid is called the "contract," and the successful bidder is called the "Declarer." Before describing the way in which the auction is conducted, it is important to understand what is meant by "bids."

If a player bid one Heart (for example) he says, in effect: "Let me be Declarer with Hearts the trump and I will contract to win at least one odd trick" (that is, one trick over a book. After the one Heart, should the next player bid two Clubs, he would offer to contract to win two-odd (eight tricks) with Clubs the trump. The second player in that case, would "overbid" or "coverall" the first bidder. Should a third player say two No Trumps, he would outbid the other two by offering to win eight tricks (two odd) if the hand be played without any trump. When there is no trump, the highest card of the suit led wins the tricks when there is a trump wins it regardless of the card led or the rank of the "plain" (non-trump) cards.

It will be noted that two Clubs (above) outranked one Heart, and that two No Trumps outranked two Clubs. That is because a bid of more tricks outranks a bid of fewer tricks; and, as between two bids of the same number of tricks, Diamonds outrank Clubs, Hearts outrank Diamonds, Spades outrank Hearts and No Trump outranks all the suits. This is the order in which the declarations count. When a contract is made, each odd trick at No Trumps counts 10, at Spades 8, at Hearts 8, at Diamonds 7 and at Clubs 6.

The rank of the suits in bidding must not be confused with their rank in play. A bid of one, two or three Spades outranks a bid of one, two or three in any other suit; but if Clubs are trumps, the Deuce of Clubs would capture the Ace of Spades; and no

SAINT AND SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN

"It was a wonderful dinner, Rhoda. We all enjoyed it very much," Faith said, smiling into her new "mud" flushed happy face. "Joy will help you wash the dishes."

"Joy!" Faith protested. "Is she speared the last freshie? I am of Rhoda's perfect apple pie. 'I didn't have to help Mr. Lundy. I'm Rhoda going to be our new—'"

"Joy!" Faith's voice was sharp with warning. "See that she polishes the glasses nicely. Rhoda! She's a lazy little demon sometimes. Come into the living room and listen to the radio when you two children are through in the kitchen."

Cherry scarcely waited until she and Faith and Bob were in the living room before she turned upon her sister in fury.

"I think the whole thing is perfectly ridiculous! Getting a maid and then treating her exact like one of the family or even better! Making a guest out of her. Well be the laughing stock of Seaside Boulevard when this story gets around. Dad making the first servant you have and then you, the other one and—"

"Cherry," Bob interrupted, "a pointlessly stern voice which caused Cherry to turn the contemptuous fire of her golden eyes upon him. I thought I made it clear just before dinner that you were not to meddle in this particular affair. Faith is the mistress of this establishment and I am to use an old-fashioned but very good expression 'the head' of it. I think it is up to us to do as she now this child shall be 'reared'."

"Please, Bob. Faith please."

"I prefer not to quarrel," Bob said coldly. "But I think it is perfectly clear who and what Rhoda Jenson is. She is a rather fine type of American girl and undoubtedly will one day be a very rich girl. Not that that alters things," he caught himself up contemptuously. "The point is, she is not a servant in the ordinary sense of the word. I saw instantly that it had never occurred to her that she would be humiliated 'put in her place' as a domestic menial. She simply took it for granted that she would be an honored member of any family that was lucky enough to get her as a helper. Probably she herself has had 'hired girls' helping on her farm in Minnesota, and has treated them like farm folk. So you must remember she is country born and bred as self-respecting as you are, and in her own eyes she has not degraded herself by seeking the only employment for which her life has fitted her. Personally I admire her spirit and I'll tell the world I admire her cooking."

Faith's hand had crept up his arm as he talked, and before he had finished it was caressing and patting his cheek. She had not felt so close to him in many weeks as she felt then, so curiously enough when he was defending another girl against Cherry's selfishness.

"Thanks for the Chataqua lecture on democracy," Cherry flashed refusing to admit defeat, but accepting it in her own way.

"Please don't be bitter, Cherry," Faith pleaded. "Bob is right. It would have been an unardonable cruelty to send her away from the table tonight to smother her to the kitchen. I only hope we can keep her, that that awful brother of hers doesn't come to claim her. Be sweet to her honey. You can be so very sweet when you want to be."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BREAKFAST—Stewed prunes, cereal, cream, baked French toast, syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Hidden oysters, parsnip cakes, homemade pepper relish, canned peaches, ginger cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER—Cream of lima bean soup, cold sliced roast pork, creamed potatoes, sautéed cabbage and celery salad, deep dish apple pie, milk, coffee.

These are the days when the home-made relishes and pickles that were "put up" last summer mean much to the housekeeper. Small children should not be allowed to eat pickles and highly seasoned sauces, but adults find them a decided stimulus to the appetite.

HIDDEN OYSTERS

Six long crusty rolls, 1 pint oysters, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 3-4 cup milk, 1 tablespoon flour.

Cut the top lengthwise from each roll and pull out the soft part leaving the crusty case. Melt butter in a smooth sauce pan, add oysters and shake over the fire until the edges of the oysters crinkle. Season with salt and pepper and divide equally among the cases. Add milk to butter in which the oysters were cooked and thicken with a little cold milk. Bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Pour about 2 tablespoons of the sauce over each portion of oysters in the cases and put on the upper crusts. Brush over with melted butter and put into a hot oven for five or ten minutes until the cases are very hot. Serve one roll to each person.

Just bit of salt added to increase their flavor.

SHE'S OUTSTANDING STAR-BUT NO AUDIENCE HAS SEEN HER YET

BY GENE COHN

NEW YORK—Not a single audience has looked upon the screen behavior of Fay Wray. And yet she is an outstanding star!

Not a single critical orb has gazed upon her performing. And yet Fay Wray has three pictures completed one of them the most important item on Paramount's next year's list of specials.

Never in screen history has there been such an unusual situation. Here is a newcomer who is a huge success on the studio lots, who is sought after by a half dozen directors—and yet her pictures have never been shown to the public and she is unknown, except through those quotations from officials that have found their way to the newspapers.

Her test will come when Broadway sees Eric Von Stroheim's production of "The Wedding March."

HOW COME?

This is how it all came about. The Von Stroheim picture had been begun in June, 1926, and the company was busy the greater part of the time for the remainder of the year. Long before the finish she had been placed under a long-term contract.

Eric Von Stroheim, meanwhile, had been brought over from Germany. In his second picture, "The Street of Sin," Fay Wray was picked for one of the two female leads, the other being Mme. Olga Baklanova of the Moscow Art Theatre. Miss Wray's work was reported as superlative.

It happened, however, that both these two pictures which so pleased studio executives were unusually long in the process of editing and making ready for the public. By the time "The Wedding March" reaches the screen it will have been more than a year in the cutting room. The Jannings picture likewise is being held back in the schedule of releases. So no one in the great movie audience throughout the country has seen Miss Wray.

But she goes marching on. She is engaged now in the production of lessons

FAY WRAY

"The Legion of the Condemned," companion piece to the air spectacle, "Wings." Paired with Gay Cooper for the leading role.

CANADIAN BORN

Miss Wray was born in Alberta, Canada. She did some rapid coming in her early years, moving with her family to California, to Arizona, to Salt Lake City, all before she was old enough to go to school. They came to Hollywood in 1921 and she went to Hollywood High school. There her dramatic ambitions began to stir, and she took part in amateur plays.

In the spring of 1923 she had followed the advice of a friend and gone to the office of a movie casting director. She received a job, but it was so young she had to have a tutor with her at the studio in order to continue her lessons.

BEAUTY HOW AND WHY

A SEDATIVE BATH

Ann Alysia

WHEN all your muscles are taut and your nerves tense; when you are tired and weary; in fact when you are "all in," as the saying goes, turn on the hot water faucet in the bath tub and prepare for yourself a sedative beauty bath.

No need to go to the high-priced hydro-therapy department of the hospital or to the sanatorium, when you have at hand, right in your own home, the hot water treatment which gives relief to tired nerves and body. Under the benificent influence of heat and water applied to face as well as body, the lines of strain and weariness which mar the face and produce the lines and wrinkles we all dread, will be smoothed away. And you will feel like a new person.

For heat is sedative and the all embracing water is a night solvent. The combination will remove the waste products which have clogged and prevented the skin from properly exercising its functions and you will emerge from the tub with a feeling of relaxation and refreshment.

For your sake I hope the water you use is soft. At least none but soft water should be used for bathing the face. If the water which flows through your faucet is hard, substitute distilled water, which can be bought at the corner pharmacy. Or use the water distilled in nature's own laboratory, snow or rain.

Do not hesitate to apply hot, soft water plentifully to your face. When weariness and fatigue disappear, your appearance will be improved a hundred per cent.

JACKET OF VERSATILITY

A JEWELLED Jenkins jacket is the latest fancy for Milady of Fashion. Flat stones in topaz, emerald and sapphire sparkle from an intricate all-over pattern embroidered in color on a natural kasha of the garment.

A lucky little novelty, this exotic coat is charming for luncheon wear, dress for tea time and takes on new lights for dinner and the theater. It is the perfect accessory for the woman in town for the day who desires to be suitably dressed as well for the evening.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

3212

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tinies now looked quite forlorn. They all had eaten too much corn. Their friend the giant stood nearby and watched them at their lunch. As Clowdy climbed down off a stalk, he said, "Why I can hardly wait." The giant laughed and said, "I guess you are a tired out bunch."

"The best thing you can do right now is get a bit of sleep tomorrow night, after eating these corn cobs away." And then the giant went away. "So," if I ever see you that bed, that were I surely sit. And so the Tinies went to sleep. The giant said, "Good night, I'll keep." And there he sat for several hours until the corn cobs were all gone. "I have the corn cobs," he said. "I trust that you won't think it is a joke."

He led them to a meadows where where grew a watermelon vine. "From that I'm going to carve a house," the giant proudly said. "It's something I have never tried, but soon you all can crawl inside." "Oh, say, that will be wonderful," said Scouty. "Go ahead!"

He took the melon in his lap, and gave the time a hearty slap. "It's mine and sold," he exclaimed. "I'll make a lovely house." A knife was then put into play, and Mister Giant carved away. The Tinies watched very close and watched him scrape and cut. He took the inside out real quick. The Tinies ate a bit. "Tastes slick," said the giant. "I made a little door, and windows, too. At last he said, 'There! That looks right. You all can crawl in this tonight.' The Tinies were overjoyed because their watermelon house was through.

PUP STORIES ARE GOOD FOR LITTLE FOLK

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Author of "The Magic Nap, etc."

Animals and other members of the animal world have had their admittance into this year's literary society. It is only right and fair that dogs should be allowed to bark their way into prominence. And as dogs are the favorite of all, books about them are always welcomed, and a critical faculty are not needed because I would be their protagonist. Father must like the much above the average to please the enthusiastic dog lover.

There is "Cops," Chief of Police Dogs," by Reginald M. Cleveland (Milton Bradley Co.) which enthusiastically put at the head of the list. It is not simply a dog story carefully thought out and told. It is, instead, a book which takes its subject matter with the serious and devoted care that it deserves. In it you will discover a lot of interesting and amusing stories about police dogs and their work.

THE new Ford car has been on the market only a few days, but it has already created unusual interest throughout the country. Millions of people got the full details of it last week for the first time and were delighted with the story of its beauty, speed, comfort, safety and low price.

All day long and far into the night, great crowds gathered in hundreds of Ford salesrooms from Maine to Florida and from New York to San Francisco. Never has such interest been shown in a new car. Never has any new car so far exceeded expectations.

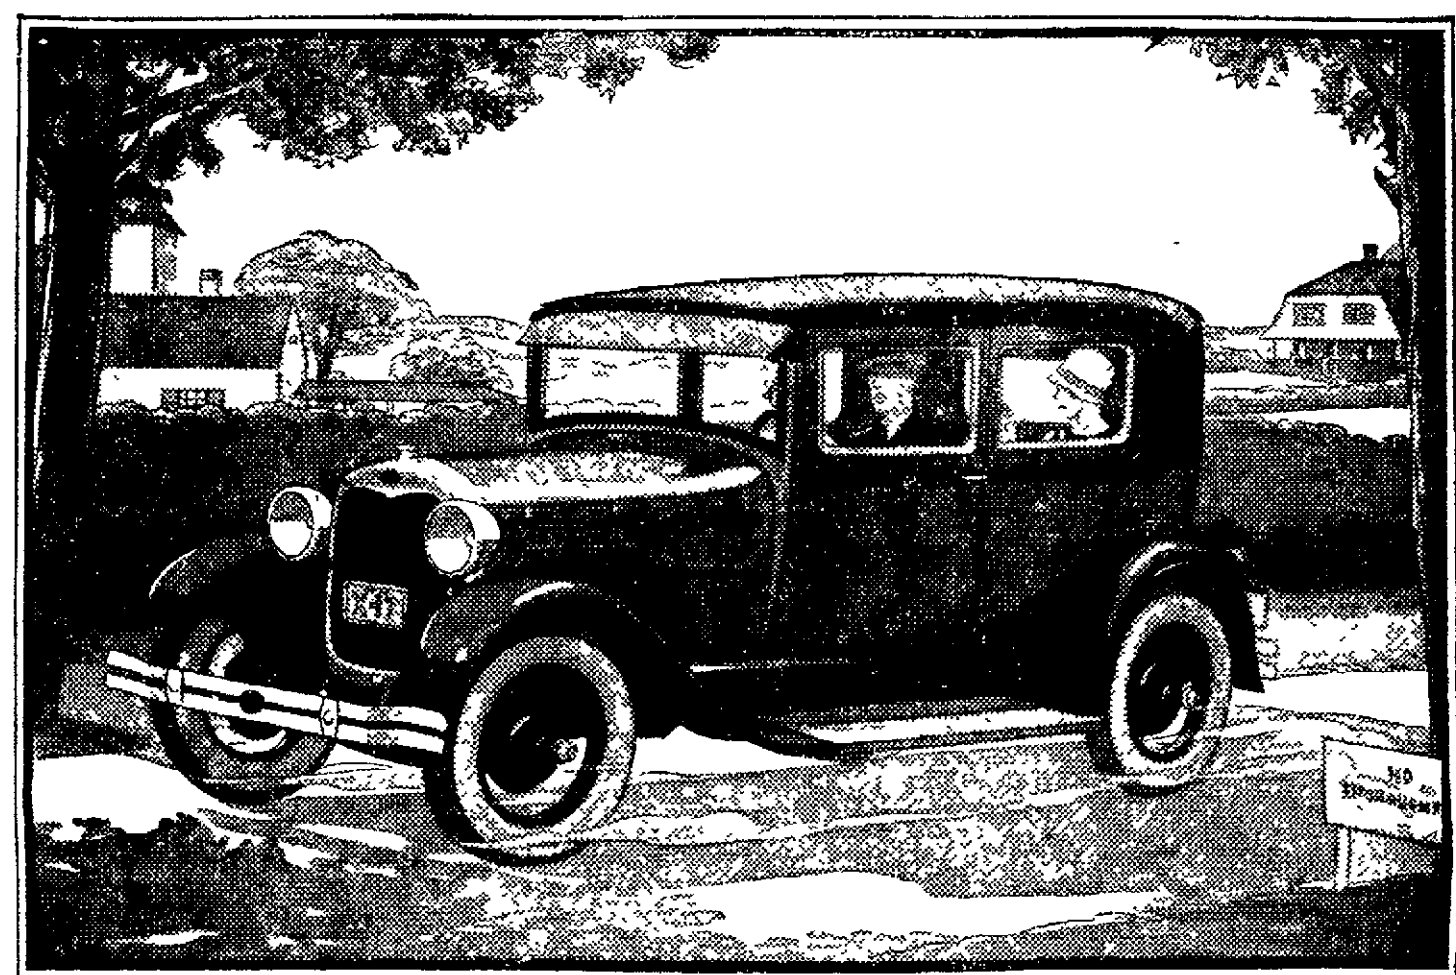

People knew that Ford was making a new car. They knew it was a good car. They had read announcements about it. But they had no idea it would be a car like this. Their quick appreciation of it is shown by the record-breaking sales.

Greatest day in the history of the automobile industry

Thousands upon thousands of orders for the new Ford car have been received since last Friday. These, and the advance orders placed with us by motorists even before the car was officially announced, will keep the entire Ford plant working day and night for weeks to come.

Such figures are a clear and unmistakable reflection of the value that has been built into the new Ford car. It is, without question, the outstanding purchase of all time in the light-car field.

*Only Ford could sell such a fine car

The low price of the new Ford car and its exceptional performance are the result of manufacturing practices and economies as unusual as the car itself. The new Ford is more than a new automobile. It is a new idea in modern, economical transportation.

By all means, take a little while today to learn about this new automobile. You will know that there is nothing quite like it anywhere in quality and price.

POWER FIRM MOVES TO EXTEND SERVICE TO FARM DISTRICTS

Wisconsin - Michigan Company Representative Holds Meetings With Farmers

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Working as field agent for the Wisconsin-Michigan Power company, W. R. Cornwall is busy closing contracts for light and power installations in farming communities and villages in the territory about New London. Mr. Cornwall has a long schedule of meetings which are to be held during the coming week at which the project will be discussed with farmers in various communities. The first meeting of the week will be held on Monday evening at the Highland cheese factory in Waupaca and other meetings are to be held at Fremont on Tuesday, near Dale on Wednesday, No. 1, and at a point on highway 124, between Waupaca and Oshkosh on Thursday.

ANNOUNCE RATE CHANGE

An announcement of a change in rates by the power company has been made possible for many farmers to agree upon the costs necessary for wiring and installation. By this change many farmers and that a cooking range may be installed. Lights and other household appliances run on one use and motors for widely diversified uses installed.

Mr. Cornwall said that the electric range is coming into great popularity among farm women, because of its low cost of operation, when run on the rates current among rural consumers.

Farm rates, declared Mr. Cornwall, are much lower than those in towns, so that much more current may be used and yet the monthly bills will be lower than those for wood, coal and gasoline, formerly used for stoves and motor-driven washing machines. Two farmers are installing ranges which combine the use of coal and wood as well as electric power.

FARM REFRIGERATORS

Local refrigeration systems are likely to become popular with people far removed from city delivery. Mr. Cornwall said. Great interest is being manifested by rural people, he pointed out.

Mr. Cornwall stated that a meeting will be held soon at the school house near Northport at which plans will be discussed to install power lines which will supply power to farmers residing on the road between Northport to the John Loss farm, and on the circuit which would supply power to 11 farms on the way to Ostrander and the return to Philip's bridge. This group of farmers has been anxious for power, and it is hoped that terms may be agreed upon whereby work of setting poles may begin early in the spring.

ASK 5 MEMBERS ON FARM COMMITTEE

County Board Appropriates $9,000 for Snow Removal During Coming Winter

Special to Post-Crescent
Waupaca—Friday morning the Waupaca county board of supervisors received a communication from a group of farmers asking that the agricultural committee be composed of five members instead of three, the number now serving. It was asked that this increase in the committee be made by the appointment of two farmer members. As the committee now stands there is only one farmer member. It was indicated that the rural interests of the county would be better served by having the majority of this committee farmers.

Although the request did not specify, it was felt by some of the supervisors that it was intended that two farmers now members of county board should be selected. Other supervisors felt that should the committee be increased it could be done by appointing two farmers now serving on the board. When a county agent was employed the agricultural committee was composed of five, three of which were farmers and two of the three farmers were not supervisors. When the county agent was dispensed with the two farmer members not supervisors were dropped.

The resolution, which proposed an expenditure of $9,000 for a snow removal program was adopted Friday without a dissenting vote. $5,000 will be used to purchase additional equipment, and $4,000 for labor and miscellaneous expenses. The provision for keeping the main roads clear of snow meets the demands, which were received in the form of petitions and letters from several organizations and towns throughout the county.

The board also voted to send an advertising agent on an advertising trip through the south in other than the period of three months to permit eligible women to join as charter members, and to give present members more time to solicit new members for the charter.

Several applications for membership have been received since its organization. Mothers, sisters, wives and daughters of deceased ex-service men, as well as those of members of the American legion are eligible to membership in the legion auxiliary.

Prospective members will be welcomed as guests at the meeting. The National Guards have scheduled a basketball game with the Shawano city team next Tuesday evening at the local armory. It is believed these items will increase the city's share to approximately $80,000.

COST CITY $50,000
Inasmuch as the highway commission has limited itself to paying no more than one-fourth of the total cost of the structure it is not likely that the city of Appleton can expect more than $40,000 from the state, leaving the city's share at $50,000 if none of the estimates are exceeded. It is quite generally believed around the city hall that the city's share will be considerably larger.

Appleton petitioned for the grade separation more than two years ago and the subway was ordered by the railroad commission after a hearing held at which the railroad and traction companies opposed the proposal. The original order specified that the subway be constructed by June 1, 1927 but later the date was changed to June 1, 1928.

LONG EXCAVATION
According to estimates in the city hall it will be necessary to excavate about 300 feet east and west of the rail crossing and concrete retaining walls must be built along both sides of the excavation for its entire length to prevent cave-ins. The estimated cost of these walls is close to $35,000. It also will be necessary to extend Randall-st. along the north side of E. Wisconsin-ave so that residents along the street will be able to get on Wisconsin-ave at the street level.

The subway itself will be 24 feet wide with 20-foot roadway and a 4-foot sidewalk. No provision is made for a center pier to support the tracks and it is probable that a long span will be necessary, increasing the cost quite materially. The railroad and traction companies, however, are ordered to bridge their tracks across the subway at their own expense. The surface of the street will be 14 feet below the tracks.

Mayor Rule was informed Monday morning that the highway commission had requested the railroad commission to extend the time for building the subway for 60 days to give the highway board a chance to investigate a proposed new route for Highway 41 on the north side of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad tracks as far as McCarty's crossing. The railroad commission, however, apparently has refused to grant the extension because the subway order was issued almost immediately after the conference.

Mayor Rule also got in touch with the highway commission in Madison shortly before noon and was informed that the commission has no idea of paying more than $40,000 toward the cost of the subway and that no provision has been made for paying any portion of it. It was explained that the highway commission had figured the city's share of the cost would not exceed $40,000 and it would be willing to pay half of that but no provision has been made for even that much money.

Mayor Rule has been invited to meet with the highway commission in Madison Tuesday and he expects to attend.

EXTRA! BLONDE ESTHER
RALSTON NOW BRUNETTE!
Imagine beautiful, blonde Esther Ralston as an exotic brunette. Imagine her as a small time actress who suddenly, through a complete transformation of appearance and personality, blossoms out as the toast of Broadway. Imagine her falling in love with a handsome young man, only to find out that he loves the unique Russian that she has become. Imagine her feelings as she wonders whether he really loves her for herself alone or whether it is only affection for what seems to be on the surface. Imagine what happens when the theatrical manager, who has made this Miss Nobody from Nowhere a Miss Somebody on Somewhere, threatens to tell Esther's sweetheart who she is and where she came from. Imagine—well, any of a hundred things and you have some slight idea of what is in store for the people of Appleton when they see Paramount's new Esther Ralston starring vehicle "The Spotlight" at Fischer's Appleton Theatre Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Appearing opposite the star in this colorful tale of stage life and stage people is Neil Hamilton, the Digby of "Beau Geste." Arlette Marchal has an important role as a temperamental prima donna while Nicholas Sneskin, the Joseph of "A Gentleman of Paris" is Hoffman, the theatrical producer.

Frank Tuttle, producer of many a first, notably "The American Venus," "Kid Boots" and "Love 'em and Leave 'em" directed "The Spotlight." It was adapted by Hope Loring from Rita Weiman's Saturday Evening Post story "Footlights."

Judd Gray Forgotten As Ruth Battles For Life

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer

New York—The last chapter in the somber story of the Snyder-Gray murder case soon is to be written, and New York wonders if the threatened electrocution of the beautiful Ruth Snyder in gray Sing Sing's "back there"—the death chamber—is to become, some time between early morning of January 8 and midnight of January 19, a flashing actuality.

Governor Al Smith becomes a co-star with Mrs. Snyder in the drama as the final act nears. He is the state's sole dispenser of clemency. And New York recalls that few, extremely few, governors have shown a disposition to distinguish between sexes in such matters.

JUDD GRAY? HE DOESN'T MATTER

Extraordinary appeals to the courts present possibilities, too, with psychiatrists and psychoanalysts summoned to the aid of Mrs. Snyder's lawyer in an eleventh hour attempt to invoke theories of "repressions," "erotic tendencies," "mental distortion" and the like in her behalf. But the governor in his office at Albany and Ruth Snyder in her little cell at Ossining, hard by the bare room where they keep the "chain," are the chief characters in which the story has since been told.

Judd Gray, the dapper little corset salesman, almost has been forgotten. It doesn't seem to matter much to New York now whether Judd Gray lives or dies.

Two other women, both mothers, have been electrocuted in New York state. Before that, five were hanged. All had been convicted of murder.

Mrs. Martha Place went to the chair March 21, 1899, and Mrs. Mary Farmer followed her March 20, 1909. Both died courageously. They bequeathed no "feminine weakness."

Mrs. Martha Place murdered her stepchild and attempted to murder her husband with an axe. Robert Ingersoll called her execution a "disgrace to the state" and Theodore Roosevelt, then governor, was severely criticized for not acting to prevent it.

That was before women had driven war ambulances and done Red Cross work. A woman was supposed to be a weak sister. It was supposed an electrocution would be more than she could bear with equanimity. New York was amazed when Mrs. Place failed to collapse.

TWO WOMEN AMONG THE SPECTATORS

The night before she spent in prayer. At nine in the morning she ate a substantial breakfast, with two cups of coffee. Immediately afterward she was dressed in funeral black, with a skirt which came to the floor. She wore only one stocking, so the electrode might be applied immediately below the knee.

Mrs. Place entered the death chamber with eyes tightly closed so she might not see the chair. She was backed into it, and the apparatus snapped into place.

Two women were among the spectators.

"What manner of women were those," one newspaper writer asked, "whose pulses are so even and whose nerves so true they could come, unmoved, into such a place as this?" These women made one final gesture of femininity. As the warden was about to put the electrodes in place, they held out their full, long skirts and made a screen. "Moved by common impulse to hide what he was doing from the men who were stooping forward with petrified eagerness to miss no detail of the death."

Dead silence prevailed. In a few minutes the affair was over.

Ten years later, Mrs. Mary Farmer was electrocuted in Auburn prison. She was a poor woman, married to a poor man. She murdered a more prosperous neighbor and took possession of her estate. The night before her execution she confessed her guilt and made a statement in which she absolved her husband.

She divided her last night between prayer and writing a long letter to her infant son.

After being dressed in a shirtwaist and skirt for her execution, she gave away the pack of cards with which she had played solitaire so often during her 11 months of imprisonment.

"I will go quietly, like a queen going to God's high court, to atone for my sins," she said. And she did, though her appearance was not regal.

She was allowed, on the way to the chair, to see her husband, James Farmer, who was in a cell in another part of the prison. Their greeting was warm, but was without even a handshake, by the warden's orders.

A PHOTOGRAPH NEXT TO HER HEART

With two men and two women attendants she was taken into the death chamber. Her skirt and her stockings on one side were slit to the knees. Without a tremor or a murmur, Mrs. Farmer sat down in the chair and was securely strapped.

Current was applied three times before she was pronounced dead.

Pressed to her heart the undertaker found a photograph of her child.

There was no less sentiment against the execution of Mrs. Farmer than for Mrs. Place. Charles E. Hughes, governor of the state, was urged to act in her behalf, but he did not. Thousands of letters and appeals from all parts of the country did not change his attitude.

Neither Mrs. Farmer nor Mrs. Place was a woman who approached Ruth Snyder in appearance, in education, or social background. But both were stoics.

New York wonders what Ruth's final day will be like if the calendar's drab count is not interfered with.

NEED $7,000,000 AS URGENT FLOOD FUND

Secretary Davis Pleads for Deficiency Appropriation in Report to Coolidge

Washington—(AP)—An immediate urgent deficiency appropriation of $7,000,000 to cover flood emergency expenditures in the Mississippi Valley was urged Saturday by Secretary Davis of the war department in his annual report to President Coolidge.

That sum, the secretary said, was needed to replace $2,000,000 borrowed from the unallotted portion of the general river and harbor appropriation to complete closing crevasses in the levees and also to restore $5,000,000 in the Mississippi special fund laid out in unexpected ways in the fight with the floods.

The $7,000,000 deficiency measure would leave the war department with this $5,000,000 available for continuing essential construction work along the river, the report said, "until a new policy may have been considered and adopted" with relation to flood control.

Disclosure that the $2,000,000 in unallotted river and harbor funds was diverted to levee repair work recalls that the war department was informed by the controller general at the time this was proposed that there was no legal authority for such a transfer.

Secretary Davis said that it was decided to make the allotment for use "on navigation features" of the Mississippi River commission's work, such as dredging and bank re-vestment, but he makes no mention of the correspondence with the controller general.

The war secretary discussed the flood situation along the Mississippi at considerable length, but since his report was prepared before the administration project for control of flood waters was matured, it shed no new light on that problem. Considerable space also was devoted to the inland waterways corporation, the Philippine islands and other civil aspects of the war department; but the military side of its work was mentioned only briefly, being left to the report of Major General Summerall, chief of staff.

For the army itself, Secretary Davis said the major need was "a continued stabilization of policy as to strength, organization and location."

FOUR HELD IN JAIL ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Two Plead Guilty While Others Declare Innocence at Marinette

Marinette—(AP)—Remanded to jail for lack of bail bonds, four men are being held here following their arraignment on charges of robbery while armed, while authorities contemplated issuing a warrant for a fifth man.

Earl Downey and Ed Downey, brothers, pleaded not guilty before Justice of the Peace William Treemear, William Reed, Negro, and a man who now gives his name as Vernon Rockwell, pleaded guilty. Preliminary hearing was set for 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. The men were arrested on the Downey farm near here after a hunt by armed posses. They were charged with holding up a roadhouse and filling station.

Had they not been arrested at the farm, according to authorities, the men planned to go to Chicago with the Negro and each recruit "five good bank robbers." Earl Downey made bank statement to authorities, they said. The banks at Pound, Peshtigo, Coleman and Porterfield were then to be robbed, authorities declared Downey told them.

Downey said he met the Negro and Rockwell in Freeport, Ill. Authorities said he had induced them to come here for the robberies, telling them that the people around Marinette were "just a bunch of dumb farmers, anyway."

Concerning Personal Bonds

Do you realize when you ask a friend to sign your bond, instead of going to a reputable Surety Company, that you are putting yourself under obligation to him and that in the future this same man may come back to you and ask for your signature on a bond of his that may be much more hazardous, or he may ask you for a favor that you will have to grant on account of your being indebted to him.

Most men who have signed personal bonds have very little conception of what they can be held for. Before you sign your next personal bond for anyone let me tell you what you can be held responsible for in addition to guaranteeing the honesty of the individual being bonded.

Two Lawrence college footballers, Capt. Elmer Ott, Kaukauna tackle, and Olin Jessup, Marshfield, end, have been chosen for positions on the all-conference eleven of the Wisconsin football conference for the 1927 season, selected by the coaches of the various teams of the conference, composed by a Milwaukee sport writer and published in the Sunday issue of a Milwaukee newspaper. The writer was none other than Stoney McGinn, former Lawrence all-state tackle and captain. Each coach sent in his selection, McGinn made his and the two teams finally selected were made up of players who received the most recognition from the coaches and the writer. On the second team Ralph Barfell, Beaver, Calif., was given a halfback job and Myron Kittleson, Hollandale, was given honorable mention.

In selecting the backfield no particular effort was made to keep the players in their regular positions owing to the fact that most of the coaches used formations wherein the backs shifted about. For the most part the linemen are accorded the places in which they appeared throughout the greater portion of the season.

In the selection of Martin of Ripon as quarterback, the first eleven has perhaps the outstanding open field performer of the state college. He can do everything well. He is fast, shifty and versatile. He can zip the ends, smash off the tackles and pass and receive equally well.

Murchie of Ripon and Lund of Carroll are according the halfback posts with Bizer, bone crushing Carroll fullback, as running mace. Murchie is one of those steady in every way, every day performers and a bloomer par excellence. His great blocking and runs through the line played a big part in Ripon's successful season. Lund of Carroll is another consistent performer, only overshadowed by Bizer's great play for the Pioneers.

BIZER REAL STAR
Bizer in reality is a player capable of making the grade in practically any college or university team. He is built on the lines of Herb Jessung and smashes through the line much like the Gopher captain, always keeping his feet and plowing, plowing, plowing for the last half inch that could possibly be made. Like Jessung, too, he can do other things besides plow. He can pass and he can toss and his blocking is fierce and sure.

Ranking next to this trio are Lawrence, Beloit, captain and quarterback, and Barfell, Lawrence, half, who are given the halfback posts on the second eleven and Rehl, Ripon fullback and punter. All were brilliant performers, but were overshadowed by the first team selections throughout the season.

Dugan of Carroll, old brother of the former "Big Chief" and Jessup of Lawrence, are the wing selections. Both are steady on defense, were good pass receivers and showed ability in handling an opposing tackle on offense. Jessup played two brilliant games this last season, against Carroll and against Ripon. Lawrence's two most important carries, besides showing ability as an end, he provided class as a ball carrier and a passer.

All-American Experts Still Argue Selections

Atlanta, Ga.—(AP)—It will be some time before the all-American selections of 1927 are given. In fact it just seems to be gathering momentum, growing on as the selections are made in the various college papers.

There is the case of Stoney McGinn, who is given the halfback job on the second eleven and Rehl, Ripon fullback and punter. All were brilliant performers, but were overshadowed by the first team selections throughout the season.

LAWRENCE WON'T SPONSOR MIDWEST LOOP TRACK MEET

Blues Give Right to Event to Ripon; Lake Forest Asks to Enter

Lawrence college will not play host to the other seven colleges of the Midwest conference at the annual track and field meet of the conference on June 2 at Whiting field, it was decided at the fall meeting of representatives of the eight schools of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois and Iowa Saturday at Chicago. As it is Wisconsin's turn to hold the meet, the Blue transferred its rights to Ripon, 1927 Wisconsin-Illinois conference track champs.

Lake Forest college of Lake Forest, Ill., left high and dry as far as conference athletics are concerned by the dissolution of the Little Five because of the withdrawal of Lawrence and Ripon, asked admittance to the Midwest group as a third Illinois representative. The petition for admittance was referred to a special committee to report at the spring meeting in May.

Coe college was appointed to represent the conference at the national collegiate meeting in New York when Cornell representatives, previously designated, asked to be relieved.

The conference discussed an informal application for membership in the league sought by Iowa State Teachers' college, Cedar Falls, Iowa. The school, it is understood, does not wish admittance until two years hence.

MAY MANAGE ATHLETICS

EDDIE COLLINS

While Connie Mack continues to deny the rumor he doesn't intend to manage many years more, it is possible that he may give up the reins of the club before next spring arrives. In that event, Eddie Collins is certain to succeed him as leader of the Athletics. Connie has said when he decides to step out. Collins is the man who will step in. He recently signed with Mack as coach, ready to step in when Mack's step out.

Many Veteran Quints In Big Ten Chase This Year

Madison—(AP)—Wisconsin's chances in the coming basketball season will depend largely upon coach Walter E. Meanwell's ability to unearth suitable material to work with his four diminutive veterans, Capt. Louis Behr, Charles Andrews, George Nelson and George Hotchkiss.

Recent scholastic difficulties have deprived the Badger quintet of three big men, Tenhopen, Kowalczyk and Miller. Dr. Meanwell hopes to be able to use two or three of these men after the midyear examinations but in the meantime he must turn to his recruits to fill the other positions.

"Bud" Foster, a rangy sophomore, looks good at center. Captain Behr and Andrews will take care of the forward positions, but Andrews is too light to play a full game. Hotchkiss and Nelson, both good guards, will probably not be used at the same time to a great extent, as each will probably be teamed with a tall heavy player.

While Wisconsin's chances are none to rosy, Michigan is in better condition. Three of last year's stars, Benny Oosterbaan, Frank Harrigan and Ernie McCoy, are all available this year. LaVerne Taylor, a promised guard, is not likely to play this year, as he has not yet recovered from injuries which he received in the football game at Camp Randall this fall.

Michigan's big advantage will be the strength and power of the team, which in past seasons has been able to walk over lighter teams in forty minute games. Though often outplayed by the superior strength it has brought victory many times.

Prospects at Chicago are bright this fall. Coach Neis Norgren has six veterans, Gist, Kaplan, Zimmerman, Farwell as forwards and Capt. Hoeger and McDonald, guards, whom he can rely upon. All this is necessary for the success of the team is a good center. Although Gist performed in this position last year, Coach Norgren prefers to have him for the forward position.

Purdue is in the field with a veteran team, and is already looming as a strong contender for the title. Illinois, although an unknown quantity this year, always has had a fairly good team that could cause plenty of trouble.

Towa will be strong this year, although Spradling, a promising prep star, has been lost. Ohio is rather doubtful, although the team should win more than half of the games scheduled, which is small reason for complaint.

Facing a stiff schedule, which included Illinois, Iowa, Purdue, Michigan and Ohio State, the four Wisconsin vets have a long, rough road ahead to land near the top of the heap. Capt. Behr and Andrews, the Rockford pair who have teamed at forward through their prep school days and three years at the university, should have a good year, although Andrews is too small and light.

DETROIT CLUB WINS AUCTION BRIDGE CUP

Chicago—(AP)—Members of the Detroit Athletic Club's auction bridge team took home the National Championship trophy Monday, a huge silver cup, won after three days of play against all-comers in the First National tournament of the American Auction Bridge League. Ely Culbertson and Baron Von Zedwitz of New York, joined two Detroiters, R. R. Richardson and T. A. Lightner, in the winning foursome.

Three four defeated the Cleveland Whist Club's team 215 to 205 matches, in a 52-hand session Saturday afternoon and night. The D. A. C. team won 18 of the 25 afternoon matches, but the Cleveland Four came back with victory in 15 of the 25 night hands. E. C. Wolfe, Omar Mueller, M. W. Kastner and H. B. Todd, composed the Cleveland team.

Henry P. Jasser, new president of the league, and Carl Anthony, of Cleveland, won the four championship of the country. John W. Smith and Wilbur C. Whithead of New York carried off the "open" pair championship.

APPLETON HOCKEY TEAMS START WORK

Two Local Squads in Valley Loop Organize, Build Rink

Plans for building a local hockey rink for this winter's competition were started at a joint meeting of the Schieler Maroons and Schlatter Independents Friday evening at the Post-Crescent office. The teams are the two local representatives in the 1927-28 Fox River Valley Ice Hockey League. Work on building the rink was started by both teams last Sunday morning.

The rink will be located at a spot near the Appleton high school practice football field as the result of permission to use the lot, secured from the board of education.

Two new players, one for each team, attended the Friday meeting. They are Henry Roemer of the Maroons and Henry Wilz of the Independents. Shorty La Fond, an old Maroon player, also was present and Jack McHugh, a former Independent, signified his intention of returning to the city to play with his old team.

The Independents present were Jack Forster, Edward Helms, Arnold Buss, Frank Buss, Richard Sommers, Jack McHugh, Lionel Krueger and Wilz. The Maroons were Al Gosha, Carl Frasier, Andrew Shiltz, Clem Kitzinger, Percy Sharp, Walter Bell, Henry Rammer, Shorty La Fond and Paul Nespor. Kitzinger, a former city skating champion, is a new addition to the veteran Maroon lineup.

Prospects of inter-city competition with some of the best teams in the state are bright. Janesville stars would like a home and home series with Appleton and attempts are being made to form a state league, divided into three parts, southern, central and northern. The southern group would include Madison, Kenosha, Racine, Beloit, Janesville and Milwaukee. The northern will have Wausau, Green Bay, Antigo and Rhinelander and the central the Fox River Valley league, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Neenah and Menasha. Both local teams are backed by the Schieler Hardware Co. The winners in each section would meet at the close of the season for the state hockey title.

KOTAL, MAULIFFE TO PLAY WITH MILWAUKEE

Two cagers well known to Appleton basketball fans, one a resident of this city, will assist in putting Milwaukee on the basketball map this winter, according to word from the Cream City where plans are being made to reorganize the once famous Bright Sports, a state championship team, that also beat some of the best pro quints in the west. The team, which claimed the midwest title and was the first to carry Milwaukee's colors into intercollegiate competition, is to be launched at the Auditorium about Dec. 14 with a strong Illinois quint of old college and university stars as the opposition.

Eddie Kotal, former Lawrence college All-Midwest conference guard, and Jack Mauliff, an All-Midwest center choice from Beloit and a former Beloit and a former Appleton high coach are included among the Bright Sports members. Other team members will be Fred "Sims" O'Connor, Red Dunning, Dick Quinn, former Marquette stars, John Leely, former Harvard forward; and three other former college stars, who have not yet definitely signed contracts.

The prime object of the Sports this year will be to regain the state title and then take another fling at the midwest honors held by them in 1921 and 1922. Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit and Fort Wayne will be on the schedule planned for the winter.

STAR MIDWEST QUINT FIRST CARDINAL TEST

Madison.—Coe college, one of the leading aspirants to the coveted midwest collegiate conference title, will invade the Badger haunt next Saturday to inaugurate the 1927 game program of Wisconsin.

The Kohawks embedded themselves in second place of their basketball circle last year by registering nine victories aside three setbacks, and came within striking distance of relieving the Cornell collegians of the midwest collegiate crown.

The alertness and well-groomed tactics of the Coe College five make them an especially attractive bill for the Badger opener. Coach Walter E. Meanwell, conscious of the ability of the Kohawks, has been leveling his guns persistently on striking an impressive defense and highly aggressive offense as a preparatory measure for the Coe opener here next Saturday.

NEW YORK PUCKSTERS STILL LEAD LEAGUE

New York—(AP)—The New York Rangers topped the National Hockey League standings Monday with a two-point advantage over the Montreal Maroons, leading contingent of the international group.

A victory for the Rangers over the Detroit Cougars Sunday night allowed the New Yorkers to maintain possession of the pinacle, breaking a 10-all point score with the Maroons. The Montreal Canadians have jumped from fourth to second place in the rankings during the past week while the American group remained unchanged. Pittsburgh has yet to break into the victory column.

APPLETON CAGERS WIN FROM MENASHA QUINT

The Appleton Whiz Bangs took a hard-fought 16-15 victory over a Menasha team in a game played Friday evening at the Neenah armory. Both teams are composed of high school boys. The Appleton team included Capt. Arndt, Knisp, Heibel, Herckert, Peterson, Brock, Brite and Smith. Goddhardt, all-Menasha district center last year and a star forward of the Fall City highs, played with the Menasha team.

KOHLER TROUNCES KIMBERLY CAGERS

Last Quarter Rally Gives Loosemen 34 to 25 Victory

Kimberly—The Kimberly-Clark first team was on the short end of a 34-25 score at the close of its battle with Louie Loose's strong Kohler squad Saturday afternoon at Kohler. The locals, with two new squad members, made a good showing and even headed the Kohler squad, 22-21, at the close of the third quarter. Kohler led 9-3 at the close of the first quarter and 18-15 at the half.

ROLL IS STAR

Kohl, Kimberly's star right forward, was the highest scorer of the game, having six field goals and a free throw to his credit. Courchane was second highest for Kimberly with three baskets and Williams followed with two. Loose with five baskets and two free throws, Wilbur with five and one free throw, and Lonsford with three baskets were the point getters for the winners.

FORMER ORANGE CAGER STARS FOR WAYLANDERS

Al Cookson, former Appleton and Fond du Lac high school football star, is starring on the courts for Wayland Academy this year. Al played in football here and forward in basketball and he held down a half back job on the Wayland team the last fall together with his brother Frank, a former Appleton and Fond du Lac high cager and a letterwinner at both schools. Al played a stellar game as the academy men beat Waupun high school, 1927 Oshkosh district champion, 27-9.

New York Squad Climbs Over Granke Yanks to Cinch Flag

New York—The New York Giants brought their first National Professional Football League pennant home to roost today. Snow, hail and a biting cold north wind failed to cool the heat of the rivalry between the Giants and the Yankees, and 3,000 football fanatics watched the Giants defeat the Red Grange outfit by 14 to 0 at the Polo grounds in the game that clinched the league championship for Tim Mara's club. The game proved a number of things, besides verifying a general notion that the Giants are the best eleven in the National league. One of these was that the rivalry between the Giants and Yankees can evoke as much fanatical partisanship as any college game.

Chicago—The Chicago Bears concluded their two-day home stay and home series today with the Philadelphia Yellowjackets, breaking a scoreless tie at Philadelphia with a 9 to 0 victory here.

The scores, a field goal and a touch-down were made in the first and last periods. Paddy Driscoll electrified the spectators with a dropkick from the 33-yard line in the first period. The Bears held this slender margin throughout the first half and the third quarter. In the middle of the last period several scoring threats finally terminated with a short bullet-like pass from Sternaman over the line to Knop who received in the end zone. Sternaman missed the try for point.

ALUMNI WANT JONES TO RETURN TO YALE

New York—(AP)—Speculation on the possibility of Tad Jones continuing as head coach of Yale football gripped the interest of alumni Monday in view of demands from coast to coast that he be retained.

At an alumni dinner in Montclair, N. J., Saturday night, Jones was bombarded with an avalanche of telegrams and speeches imploring him to take back his resignation.

Small Burns Need Quick Care To Avoid Infection

Madison—That small burns need quick attention because of the possibilities of infection and that science has discovered new methods to resist the "shock" resulting from larger burns were announcements made by the educational committee of the State Medical Society in its bulletin this week.

Almost any cool, wet, soft covering of the burned part gives some relief, declares the Medical Society's bulletin. "Burns that are extensive are not only uncomfortable but serious. Even if not very deep, when as much as a third of the entire surface of the skin is involved, death is waiting right outside the door. The person who has a deeper and smaller skin burn, even though his foot (toes, heel, ankle and all) be burned to a cinder, is under much less risk of losing his life.

"Although the suffering of one burned extensively be extreme, death rarely occurs at once. However, after a few hours, a drowsiness develops which later ends in fatality. It has been found that this change goes hand-in-hand with the changes in the blood, the result of changes in the tissue burned. It has also been found that by special care and the wise use of medicine this condition of 'shock' produced by the burn may be counteracted. Fortunately, if one can pull through the first two days, the 'shock' passes off.

LEAVES SCAR

"When it comes to the healing of the burn itself, it is a question mainly of how soon the skin can be restored. In the first few days it may be difficult to tell, for if the skin is injured in all its layers, it leaves a raw wound. New skin will grow in from the margins at the rate of a sixteenth to an eighth of an inch a day. If some of the deeper parts of the skin survive, the burn may seem just as bad for a week or two. Then from these little areas of survival, new skin starts growing just as from the margins. It may be like hundreds of little grey, pinhead sized, islands growing on the red wet surface of the wound. The more numerous they are and the nearer together, the quicker is the cure accomplished. "Moreover, the speed of healing is doubly important in the appearance

Leaders at International Show Say Prosperity Barometer Is Climbing

Chicago—(AP)—If the International Livestock exposition is the barometer of agricultural prosperity its leaders claim it to be, the North American farmers, especially those who practice diversified farming, again are nearing a golden era.

The twenty-eighth annual exposition, which virtually ended Friday night, was by far the most successful of all. It brought the largest and best entries of blooded horses, cattle, sheep and swine and the largest attendance of out-of-town visitors. In the hay and grain show exhibitions, held in conjunction with the show, also brought out record breaking exhibits in quality and quantity. The livestock and grain exhibits were valued at $5,000,000.

For each of the seven days, the attendance averaged between 35,000 and 40,000. New price records for sales of prize winning cattle, sheep and swine on the hoof were established and sales of high bred horses to South and North American breeders were the heaviest in 15 years.

Iowa exhibitors won all-exposition honors this year, taking 103 blue ribbons and placing 36 grand champions. Ohio and Illinois ranked next, Ohio winning 67 blue ribbons and 22 grand championships. Illinois capturing 97 first places and 18 grand championships.

Awards made late Friday, gave E. J. Hoffman, LaCrosse, Wis., first and second for pullets in the Silver-pen-

Do You Have A Good Time On Washday?

—and the Cost is More

[If You Do Your Own Washing]

People who have no particular desire to boast the laundry business—Such as home economics experts—have proven that it actually costs more in money, time and energy for a woman to do her washing at home, and that the more equipment she has to help her, the more it costs her to do the washing. They have proved that the actual money cost of doing a washing with mechanical assistance is much more than the moderate charge we make for our DAMP WASH SERVICE for the same bundle, so that a woman does a hard days work and has her house all up-set, and has gained nothing. Of course, damp wash is all that any home equipment can give no matter how much it costs, or how efficient it is.

The BENSON MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE © CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Vance eliminates Miss St. Clair as a suspect and he intervenes with Markham against arresting Leacock when some of Pyffe's statements strengthen the case against the captain. It is brought out that Pyffe had forged Alvin Benson's name to a check. Vance makes an appointment for Markham with Paula Banning.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIX

She assumed a attitude of smiling indifference.

"I'm afraid you've made another mistake," she spoke lightly. "Mr. Benson and I were not even friends. Indeed, I scarcely knew him."

There was an overtone of emphasis in her denial—a slight eagerness which, in indicating a conscious desire to be believed, robbed her remark of the complete casualness she had intended.

"Even a business relationship may have its personal side," Vance reminded her; "especially when the intermediary is an intimate friend of both parties to the transaction."

"She looked at him quickly; then turned her eyes away. 'I really don't know what you're talking about,' she affirmed; and her face for a moment lost its contours of innocence, and became calculating. 'You're quick to imply that I had any business dealings with Mr. Benson.'"

"Not directly," replied Vance. "But certainly Mr. Pyffe had business dealings with him; and one of them, I rather imagined, involved you considerably."

"Involved me?" She laughed scornfully, but it was a strained laugh.

"It was a somewhat unfortunate transaction, I fear," Vance went on. "Unfortunately in that Mr. Pyffe was necessitated to deal with Mr. Benson, and doubly unfortunate, I know, in that he should have had to drag you into it."

His manner was easy and assured, and the woman sensed that no display of scorn or contempt, however well simulated, would make an impression upon him; therefore, she adopted an attitude of tolerantly incredulous amusement.

"And where did you learn about all this?" she asked playfully.

"Alas, I didn't learn about it," answered Vance, falling in with her manner. "That's the reason I've seen that I indulged in this charming little visit."

"I was foolish enough to hope that query told him that the right moment had arrived. Before she could gain her equilibrium or dispel the momentary fear which had assailed her, he said, with suave deliberation:

"The day Mr. Benson was shot he took home from the office a small blue box of jewels."

"She caught her breath, but other wise gave no outward sign of emotion."

"Do you think he had stolen them?"

"The moment she had uttered the question she realized that it was a mistake in technique."

An ordinary man might have been momentarily diverted from the truth by it. But by Vance's smile she recognized that he had accepted it as an admission.

"It was rather fine of you, y' know, to lend Mr. Pyffe your jewels to cover the note with."

At this she threw her head up. The blood had left her face, and the rouge on her cheeks took on a mottled and unnatural hue.

"You say I lent my jewels to Andy? I swear to you—"

Vance halted her denial with a slight movement of the hand. She saw that his intention was to save her from the humiliation she might feel later at having made too emphatic and unqualified a statement; and the graciousness of his action, although he was an antagonist, gave her more confidence in him.

She sank back into her chair, and her hands relaxed.

"What makes you think I lent Andy my jewels?"

Her voice was colorless, but Vance understood the question. It was the end of her deceptions. The pause which followed was an amnesic—recognized as such by both. The next spoken words would be the truth.

"Andy had to have them," she said, or Benson would have put him in jail."

One read in her words a strange, self-sacrificing affection for the worthless Pyffe.

"And if Benson hadn't done it, and had merely refused to honor the check, his father-in-law would have done it."

Andy is so careless, so unthinking. He does things without weighing the consequences; I am all the time having to hold him down."

But this thing has taught him a lesson—I'm sure of it."

I felt that if anything in the world could teach Pyffe a lesson, it was the blind loyalty of this woman."

"Do you know what he quarrelled about with Mr. Benson in his office last Wednesday?" asked Vance.

"That was all my fault," she explained, with a slight. "It was getting very near to the time when the note was due, and I knew Andy didn't have all the money. So I asked him to go to Benson and offer him what he had, and see if he couldn't get my jewels back. . . . But he was refused—I thought he would be." Vance looked at her for a while sympathetically.

"I don't want to worry you any more than I can help," he said; "but you tell me the real cause of your anger against Benson a moment ago?"

She gave him an admiring nod. "You're right—I had good reason to hate him."

Her eyes narrowed unpleasantly. "The day after he had refused to give Andy the jewels, he called me up—it was in the afternoon—and asked me to have breakfast with him at his house the next morning. He said he was home and had the jewels with him; and he told me—hinted, you understand—that maybe—maybe I could have them. That's the kind of beast he was!"

"I telephoned to Port Washington to Andy and told him about it, and he said he'd be in New York the next morning. He got here about 9 o'clock, and we read in the paper that Benson had been shot that night."

Vance was silent for a long time. Then he stood up and thanked her. "You have helped us a great deal. Mr. Markham is a friend of Major Benson's, and, since we have the check and the confession in our possession, I shall ask him to use his influence with the Major to permit us to destroy them—very soon."

A total of 47 marriage licenses were issued by John E. Hantschel, county clerk, during November as compared with 42 permits issued during the same month in 1926. Up to November 30 405 marriage licenses were issued by Mr. Hantschel, while last year to the same time there were 21 less permits issued or 384. In October, this year, 47 permits were issued and in September but 40 licenses were granted.

LONG RAIL FIGHT NEARING ITS END

Expect Decision Soon on Move to Obtain Protection for Engine Crews

Madison—(P)—For four years the Wisconsin Railroad commission has carried on a fight to compel railroads to provide cab curtains which will afford engineers and firemen on locomotives adequate protection from cold, rain and snow.

After a tedious passage through the state legislature, the courts of the state, the U. S. Supreme court and the Interstate Commerce commission, the success or failure of the fight, now rests in the hands of the Interstate Commerce commission, whose decision will probably be made within the next six days, according to A. R. McDonald, commissioner, who has been handling the matter for the railroad commissioner.

Mr. McDonald was for twenty years a locomotive engineer, and for that reason is possessed of considerable first-hand knowledge of the necessity for protecting engine crews, from the rigors of winter weather.

In 1923, acting on instructions from the legislature, the Wisconsin Railroad commission ordered all carriers in the state to equip their locomotives with a certain type of cab curtain which was thought to give adequate protection. The curtain chosen was selected from one already in use by the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic Railroad.

All witnesses who appeared at the hearings were agreed that some sort of protection is needed by cabin crews of locomotives, the point of disagreement being a contention on the part of railroad officials that the matter should be left to the judgment of each railroad, rather than the enactment of a compulsory ruling, according to Mr. McDonald.

Engineers and firemen from Maine, testified Mr. McDonald says, that they often rode their cabs when the weather was 60 degrees below zero, and the snow five feet deep on the level. These men said that, although they were provided with two side curtains, they had no protection at their back, and consequently were often wet to the skin from snow which blew into the cab.

After the last hearing, which closed in Denver, Nov. 18, Mr. Rogers, examiner for the Interstate Commerce commission, announced that it would be made a "report case," instead of an "order case," by which is meant that after the examiner had digested the evidence, he will make his report in the form of a tentative order, by either side within 90 days. It will be the order of the commission, and must be complied with by all roads in the territory affected. If objection made, the Interstate Commerce Commission must review the evidence, and either reject the report, or issue an order, from which there is no appeal save through the courts. Mr. Rogers' report is expected to be ready within about sixty days.

Gage, a senior, is on the squad this year and competition for the other places on the two teams is strong. Members of the conference are East and West Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Sheboygan, Manitowish, Marinette and Fond du Lac high schools. Two triangular debates and a dual debate are held on the first evening and the following week the winners meet in a triangular debate for the conference championship.

TELL CHILDREN WHAT WAR REALLY IS LIKE, WAR VETERAN URGES

Fallacious Stories of War Glory Pave Way for War, Private Peat Says

The most potent method of eradicating war is through mental and spiritual education during the early years of perception and understanding, according to Harold R. Peat, internationally known as Private Peat, Sunday afternoon at the third of the series of vesper services at the First Methodist Episcopal church when he delivered his lecture entitled the Unexcusable Lie.

If a mental and spiritual disarmament is achieved, mental disarmament naturally will follow, he said. Armies and navies may be easily recreated if it is the popular will; hence, spiritual and mental education should come first. The illusions that have been built about war by historians for use in the textbooks of all nations have given the child the wrong impression of war. Battle and combat have been glorified to such an extent that the creation of great monuments and the award of medals for special bravery and achievement in war becomes the dream of every child. When seven wars are set down upon one page, of a history textbook, the child comes to think of war as kicking over so many bags of peanuts, Private Peat said.

CHILDISH IMPRESSION
"That juvenile desire to get a reason for the beginning of things may be analyzed after living in mud, blood, and filth, then reading my war dead men's bones for two years, and after being disabled by cruel wounds—why I burned with the soldier instinct. I became convinced it was because my childish imagining of war was a thing glorious and adventurous, romantic, and no doubt heroic. I had not truly believed life was at all brave or noble in peace time," said the speaker.

Throughout Mr. Peat's extensive travels he has found that every child in every land receives from his school textbooks the same idea. The youth is made ready for war in the home and in the school house. "He is led to about war, and he goes to war when those evil agencies whose way in the world is threatened by an obstacle determined that the obstacle be removed forcibly," he continued.

WOULD CHANGE TEACHING
The child in every nation believes that his country is the "finishing" of any country in the world in a couple of weeks. Each child believes that his country never began a war, that it never took part in an offensive war. He believes that his country entered war only to help other countries. "This is the idea that is handed down from one generation to another; it has become a tradition burdened with a superiority-complex plus."

Mr. Peat believes in teaching the child about war as it actually is. Although the truth of war can never be taught, the presentation of war should paint the realistic side of battle, in his opinion. The price of glory and not the glory should be impressed upon the child. He should be taught that the price of a Victorian cross amounts to several thousand wooden crosses, that one happy heart means thousands of broken hearts. As the children of today will form the public opinion of tomorrow, it is significant that they should know what war means. If, after they have a comprehensive idea of war, they still desire it, the present generation has done its duty in presenting the truth as far as possible, the speaker argued.

ATTEMPT TO HALT REMUS TESTIMONY

Assistant Prosecutor Moves to Stop Flood of Hearsay Evidence

Cincinnati, Ohio.—(AP)—The state made a determined attempt Saturday to stem the rush of hearsay evidence in George Remus' murder trial and was partly successful.

George Connors, dapper young lieutenant-in-chief of Remus during the defendant's hey-day as the "King of bootleggers," was continuing with the chronological tale of narrations alleging misconduct by the wife Remus killed here last Oct. 6 and descriptions of Remus' maniacal reactions.

In the long list of those who testified they tattled to Remus and observed resultant outbursts they thought indicated he was insane, Connors was number four.

He mounted the witness stand late Friday and in 54 minutes, covered three months of tale-bearing and observation of Remus. Sunday he was covering the remainder of a period of one year and nine months when Walter K. Sibbald, assistant prosecutor, demanded that a limit be placed somewhere.

"Certainly there never was contemplated under your rulings," he said to Judge Chester Shook, "that a witness could get up here and testify to every sort of wild tale and rumor he heard while traveling all over the country. We are not concerned with anything at all excepting things told directly to Remus which might or might not have influenced his mind."

150 RURAL SCHOOL GIRLS STUDY MOTHER TRAINING

One hundred and fifty girls in the rural schools of Outagamie-co were enrolled in Mother Trainings classes last week. The classes were organized by Miss Marie Kohn, county nurse, and Miss Helen Thayer, an organizer from the state board of health. Classes were formed in the schools at Black Creek, Seymour, Shiocton, Dale, Combined Locks, Bear Creek and Hortonville and the state graded school at Cicero.

The girls will devote one hour each week to instruction and training that will help them in later life, according to Miss Kohn. The course is intended to lower the morbidity and mortality rate of infants and eventually children of all ages. The course

FIRE DEPARTMENT FIGHTS BLAZE IN RAILROAD SLEEPER

A chemical truck from the fire department was called to the Chicago and Northwestern depot at 2:30 Sunday morning to extinguish a fire which had started in a sleeping car on train No. 102. The fire started in the packing in the floor of the car after an attempt had been made to thaw out a frozen pipe with a blow torch. The fire started during the run from Green Bay to Appleton and the train stopped along the way and telephoned ahead to Appleton and asked the department to have a fire truck at the depot. Considerable flooring in the car was torn out.

A fire which started from a leaky carburetor caused damage estimated at $200 to a truck owned by W. A. Lindeman about 6:30 Saturday night at the corner of W. College-ave and State-st. The fire department saved the car from total destruction. The cab was burned off the machine.

SECRETARY WORK REPORTS BIG CUT IN EXPENDITURES

Interior Secretary Urges Economy in Use of Natural Resources in U. S.

Washington.—(AP)—Another record of cutting down expenditures was published Monday by Secretary Work, who, in his annual report showed that the Interior department last year spent $27,709,408 less than during the preceding year.

The record also showed that during the past four years operating costs for the department had been cut by a total of $13,331,871 and that the force of permanent employees had been reduced by 2,732, notwithstanding an increase in the functions delegated to the department.

Along with the accomplished reduction in the expenditures of money Secretary Work urged that similar economy be permitted in the use of natural resources. Calling attention to overproduction of oil and the existing prices, the report emphasized the importance of legislation vesting the Secretary with discretion in the matter of leasing and developing the oil resources of the Osage reservation in Oklahoma, a portion of which must be leased annually regardless of market conditions.

BUREAU IMPROVE
The secretary declared that every bureau in the department had shown steady improvement except that of Indian affairs, where the cumulative effect of many years of financial neglect had brought about what he described as "actual poverty."

In discussing the Indian service the secretary reviewed his previous recommendations to congress concerning states' responsibility for the education, health and social welfare of the Indians. "It would be feasible for congress to authorize the secretary to enter into contracts with states for the handling of the health and education of the Indians, the report said, with federal expenditures being made through the states under proper safeguards.

The bureau of pensions at the close of the fiscal year showed 489,942 pensioners on the roll as against 504,723 on June 30, 1926, a net loss to the roll of 11,781. During the year 31,501 names were added and 42,282 removed by reason of death, remarriage and other causes. Pensions paid by the government amounted to $230,152,712 as compared with $207,844,248, the previous year an increase of $22,308,464.

The reclamation bureau, the report said, is at present constructing a number of engineering works which in size, cost and natural obstacles rank among the great irrigation projects of the world. The dam on the Owyhee project in Idaho will be higher than any in existence. These projects are a part of a ten year program aimed to complete construction on all the approved engineering needs. The estimated cost of these developments is $97,000,000.

Four surveys at the request of educational officials brought the Bureau of Education opportunity for outstanding achievement during the year. The system of education of Utah was subjected to an examination under the direction of the Commissioner of Education and a series of constructive recommendations was submitted to state officers. Rutgers university, New Jersey, was similarly examined and many recommendations which resulted already have been adopted.

The geological survey explored and mapped two large areas in Alaska during the year and progress toward a map of southeastern Alaska made from aerial maps of the navy has gone steadily forward. There was considerable progress in the development of aerial photography in connection with topographic mapping.

BALLARD TO BAN LIQUOR AT PROM

Warns Juniors That Drinking Will Not Be Tolerated in Capitol

Madison.—(AP)—While permission has been granted the University of Wisconsin class of 1928 to hold its promenade in the state capitol this permission was conditional.

Clinton B. Ballard, superintendent of public property, who has final say as to disposal of floor space in the big state building, warned Willard J. Mosen, chairman of the 1928 Junior prom, that liquor drinking or "tattling" would be prohibited in the building on the night of next February 3. Mr. Ballard has been told that in the past Junior proms in the capitol and elsewhere were quite damp affairs, if not totally wet.

Last winter the 1928 class Junior prom was held there under the supervision of the present superintendent of public property. He announced that after the prom his watchman had found but one bottle after the dance and that one young man had been taken into his office for questioning during the social affair.

Students and others who have seen proms and more proms declared it was probably the most decorous of the long line.

Mr. Ballard has warned the students that this year's festival must be equally arid.

A business concern founded in 1195 still flourishes at North Walsham, England.

BURGLARS GET $12 FROM TWO SCHOOLS IN FOURTH WARD

Find $10 in Safe at McKinley School and $1.98 in Desk at Richmond School

Police are investigating robberies of McKinley and Richmond schools Sunday night. Approximately $12 was stolen. At McKinley school the combination was broken from the cabinet safe with an axe and an iron bar taken from the furnace room. The lock on the cabinet was forced out and about $10 was taken. At Richmond school the marauders broke open a drawer in the desk of Miss Viola Pelzer, kindergarten teacher, and stole $1.98.

It is not known how the robbers gained entrance to McKinley school although the door on the west side of the building was found open Monday morning. The robbery was discovered by William De Young, janitor, early Monday morning and misadventure of his axe. He went around the building and found the safe door had been broken open. He notified the police. Mr. De Young had been in the building about 9 o'clock Sunday night to look after the furnaces and at that time, he said, everything was secure.

SECOND ROBBERY
About a year ago McKinley school was entered and considerable money was taken, according to F. B. Younger, principal. Since that time, Mr. Younger explained, it has been the policy of the school not to leave more than $10 in the safe. He said that all teachers had been instructed not to leave money in their desks. The marauders got into Richmond school by breaking a basement window. There is no safe at that school, Mr. Younger said. The robbers forced the lock on the drawer of the desk in

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

JACK LOCKWILL BACK AT ROCKLAKE

Baffled, Jack walked slowly back toward Hampton House. He had passed from view of the laughing group when he met a cross-eyed junior called "Crossfire." "I faint would whisper a word or two in thy attentive ear, frosh," said Crossfire. Then he whispered several words. "How do you know about it?" asked Jack. "I heard "Custard" tell his buddy," was the answer.

Joe Piper, nicknamed "Custard Pie," was one of the Har-gon bunch. "Thank you, Cross-fire," said Jack, as the friendly junior turned away. "Maybe I'll be there myself."

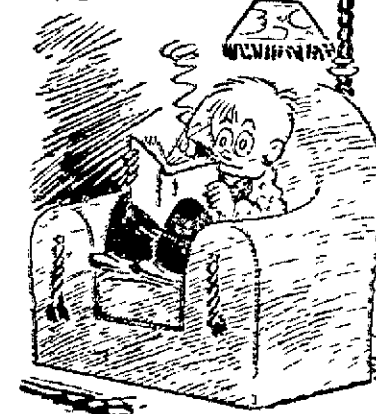

Late that night, seven boys, disguised by black hoods which wholly covered their heads, stole one by one into an old, abandoned iron foundry, far from the Academy.

The first lad to enter the foundry admitted the others as they came, singly, and gave a pre-arranged signal knock on the door. After the appearance of the seventh boy, the door was barred. "We're all here," said the leader, addressing his six hooded companions. "This is the Anti-Lockwill League, which will be bound by an oath to defeat him in everything." (To Be Continued)

TWO KAUKAUNA BOYS ON HONOR ELEVENS

Ott and Murchie Chosen by Conference Coaches for Mythical Team

Kaukauna—Two Kaukauna football players were placed on mythical all-state college football eleven. The two are Elmer Ott, 1927 football captain of Lawrence college and Gordon Murchie of Ripon college. The team was chosen by the coaches of the state colleges. Both boys were unanimous choices of the coaches.

Elmer Ott, former member of Kaukauna high school football eleven, was honored with the captaincy at Lawrence last year. He was chosen for the position of right tackle on the all-state eleven. Ott was the outstanding tackle of the year and his play, with that of Jessup, Darfelt and Brust, kept the Lawrence season from being a total wreck.

Gordon Murchie left Kaukauna shortly after entering high school when his parents moved to Wausau. He entered high school at that city and was a big star in the Wisconsin River valley. At Ripon he held down a half-back position and he receives the left half post on the mythical eleven.

OIL FIELD WORKERS EVOLVE OWN LANGUAGE

Seminole, Okla. —(AP)—Like the "geel" in the printing office, who doesn't wear horns, the "rough-neck" in the oil fields is not a pug-nacious individual with a touchy disposition. The title, like many others that have become everyday language in this derricks dotted country, refers to anyone who performs rough, unskilled labor.

There are no teamsters in the oil fields. They are "skinnners." Under the skinner is the "swamper," who corresponds to a truck or auto driver's helper. As a sort of straw boss

TEACHERS OPPOSE MURDER PUBLICITY

Instructors at University of Wisconsin Blame Power of Suggestion

Madison—(AP)—Undue publicity given murder and crime details was denounced today by Prof. M. V. O'Shea, education department, University of Wisconsin, and students of educational psychology.

"It is unwise to publish striking details of murders," he declared. "If so much publicity were not given, I think it would reduce the temptation to unstable persons."

Prof. Kimball Young, of the sociology department, declined to make a statement concerning the possible connection of murders. Informed that there had been fifteen of them in Wisconsin in the past two months, Prof. Young said it would be unwise to make a statement without a comprehensive study of the situation. He said any statement now would be mere jumping at conclusions without backing for beliefs and added that such statements might only increase morbid interest in major felonies.

Prof. E. A. Ross, head of the sociology department, also preferred not to make a statement without detailed knowledge of the crimes and their perpetrators.

Prof. O'Shea, however, said: "There is no doubt that there is a connection. This is merely an example of mob influence at work. It leads a person of imperfect mental balance to be affected so that he is inclined to do likewise."

Cutting down newspaper descriptions of crimes would have a wholesome influence, Prof. O'Shea believes. He attributes the large number of murders in Wisconsin to the harmful effect of newspaper publicity.

"Epidemics of crime are due quite largely to suggestion," he maintains. "A murder is committed and publicity is given to the striking details, and unstable men and women are unable to resist the suggestion."

"There has been a great deal of publicity given these crimes and it is probable that something like an epidemic is occurring at the present time. This was strikingly true of the car barn murders in Chicago a few years ago, and of the student suicide last year."

YOUR QUESTION AND ITS ANSWER

By J. A. PANNECK, D. C. Palmer Chiropractor

QUESTION: I am a woman forty years of age and have been bothered for years with stomach, kidney and liver trouble. Will Chiropractic adjustments help me to regain health?

H. R. P.

ANSWER: The Chiropractor does not care so much what organ is affected; he wants to know what region of the spine is causing the effect. He then concentrates his effects on making a spinal analysis of that section of the spine which gives off the nerve supply going to the diseased part; he finds one or more of the small bones of the spine out of alignment or its proper position, pressing on the nerves which deliver the function to these organs from the brain which is the source of life. He then gives the proper adjustment in that particular region of the spine and Nature, the power within, restores that sick organ to health. There is no substitute for natural health there is no source of health power equal to that available in the natural action of the body, when the spine is in normal adjustment. My advice is to consult a competent Chiropractor and have him locate the cause of your ailments. Relief has been found ready and waiting by scores who have adopted the Chiropractic Way.

FUTURE OF DAIRY INDUSTRY IS SAFE

Sale of 75,000 Cattle During Year Is No Warning, Bulletin Declares

Madison—(AP)—There need be no fear for the security of the Wisconsin dairy heads 75,000 dairy cows were sold outside the state by Wisconsin dairy men in one year.

The state department of agriculture says this will not cause reduction of the herds and thereby reduction of output.

According to the latest U. S. census, Wisconsin has 2,029,269 cows two years old or over, or of breeding age. "That means," according to a statement from the state officials, "over 2,000,000 calves a year, and if half are heifers, we are producing more than 1,000,000 heifer calves a year. By selling 75,000 cows we are selling only 7 1/2 per cent of the yearly increase. Instead of selling the goose that lays the golden egg, we are only disposing of a little of our product. The dairy cow is one of Wisconsin's best crops."

A review by the livestock sanitation division of the department of agriculture shows that 9,944 head of cattle were shipped out of Wisconsin in October, Illinois being the heaviest buyer. More than 2,700 head were shipped to Illinois points. New Jersey bought 1,051 head. The large purchase in New Jersey is accounted for the department in the fact that the state has adopted new regulations governing the importation of cattle to which few states besides Wisconsin are able to conform.

There were 468 head of cattle shipped into Wisconsin during month before last, Minnesota shipped in 19 mules to help do Wisconsin farm work, and 90 horses were purchased by the state farmers from farmers and agencies outside the state. North Dakota was the chief horse-furnishing state, sending a Wisconsin 498 head.

WILL NOT TAX 1925 BANK STOCK PROFITS

Commission Instructs Assessors Not to Include Dividends from That Year

Income tax assessors who were at Madison last week to discuss the amendments to the income tax law were instructed not to include dividends on bank stock for 1925 in the income assessment of the owners, according to Leo J. Toonen, assessor for Outagamie and Waushara counties, who attended the meeting. Miss Myrtle Kramusch, deputy assessor for the two counties, also attended the meeting.

The Wisconsin Tax commission reached the decision on the matter and it was that body which issued the instructions to the deputies.

Under chapter 396, Laws of 1927, the taxation of banks from 1926 is to be upon the average income of the banking corporation and the tax is to be in lieu of all other taxation except taxes upon the real estate owned by said banks.

Previous to 1926 bank taxation was on the capital stock of banks as personal property, and in the construction of the two laws a question arose as to whether through the interchange the tax commission had any right to exempt bank dividends for 1925 from individual taxation.

After a study of the question it was decided that the direct exemption is allowed for these 1925 earnings, that as in theory at least the banks paid a tax on their capital stock in that year in lieu of other taxation the dividends were non-assessable.

The change in the method of bank taxation was necessitated by the United States Supreme court decision that the taxes levied against a Hartford bank for the year contested was illegal because of the unconstitutional property tax conditions for like investments in loans was not taxed in the same manner.

It is this decision that is now causing settlements by municipalities of the bank taxes levied under the old law.

The income tax assessors, who were here for three days discussing the changes made in the income tax laws by the fast legislature returned to their homes Saturday afternoon.

PREDICT NEW COLD WAVE FOR TONIGHT

Zero Mark, Registered Saturday Morning, Was Coldest of the Season

The warmest weather recorded here for several days arrived Monday noon when the official Schlefer Hardward C. thermometer registered 23 degrees above zero, a rise of two degrees since morning. Saturday morning the liquid registered an even zero, but at noon had risen to 22 degrees. Sunday was warmer with the mercury touching the 28 degree mark in the morning and 32 at noon, but Sunday night it again fell off, dropping as low as 12 degrees.

A light snow Friday night and Saturday covered the ground with about a half an inch here and there around Shawano. The snow fell heavier and six inches was reported. Above Shawano, on the Menominee Indian reservation, the snowfall was from 8 to 10 inches.

A colder wave is due Monday night and in eastern Wisconsin Tuesday. The forecast is probably fair Monday night and Tuesday, except for some cloudiness; colder Monday night and in the east portion Tuesday.

KAUKAUNA MEN ARRESTED FOR TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS

Two Kaukauna men, John Brower and Joseph Toman, were arrested Saturday for failing to stop at an arterial highway sign at the junction of State Truck Highway 76 and 10 at the Triangle school about three miles west of Appleton. The arrests were made by Charles Steidl, county motorcycle officer. Recently Officer Steidl stopped a large number of automobiles which failed to observe the arterial sign at this corner and they were taken into court and warned if they were caught again in the same offense they would be fined. At the same time a general warning was issued to all motorists to be more careful in observing arterial signs on all county roads. The two Kaukauna men are to appear in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg this week.

Embryo Scout Leaders Work Up Huge Appetites In Camp

There are no kids like old kids—to paraphrase a familiar quotation. The truth of this saying was proven, the weekend when 20 persons, valley council boy scout committee, valley scoutmasters and several patrol leaders and guests spent Saturday afternoon, Saturday evening and Sunday at the Wisconsin-Michigan Power company cabin at Gardner dam on the upper Wolf river. The camp was the last meeting of committee and scout leaders who took part in the scout eladers' training course given under the direction of M. G. Clark, valley executive.

Men who spent most of their time in office and at other indoor work spent Saturday night sleeping on canvas cots protected by a few blankets and listening to a noisy wind howl through the cracks and windows of the cabin and then, to top things off, went on an eight mile hike through the woods Sunday with from eight to ten inches of snow covering the ground. The old boys can be regular lumberjacks if they are willing.

Arrangements for the camp were made by W. E. Schubert of the Wisconsin-Michigan Power company, chairman of the valley council camp committee. Not only did he make arrangements but proved to the satisfaction of the men that he can also cook and break trail with a speed that left more than one of his followers with aching muscles and creaking joints.

Leaving Appleton in an automobile caravan shortly after 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon the men all were accounted for at 6 o'clock. Three of the cars had an opportunity to practice their good turn daily when they helped push in stalled car up one of the longest hills north of the Indian reservation, about three miles from camp. More than a half hour and plenty of push were required before the car, of ancient vintage, was started on its way again.

OLD BOYS TIE KNOTS

Early arrivals in camp turned their attention to the intricacies of rope splicing under the direction of George Beck, Appleton. Before the evening was over practically every man in the group had at least one splice to show for. Later supper the men gathered together for a songfest, that rivaled all the barber shops quartets existing. Stunts followed the songs and the men saw the first model of the new Ford it appears in the minds of six men who were aided by a half dozen chairs, a dish pan and a spoon.

A night hike had been scheduled for 10 o'clock and with Mr. Schubert breaking trail, about half the men tramped down river through the underbrush and then back to camp. Dr. J. L. Loeberg with several cranes went out hunting snipe in the underbrush and returned with valuable notes on the activities of the bird.

About midnight taps was sounded and 30 men and boys went to sleep as best one can when sleeping on newspapers over canvas cots or with inadequate blankets beneath and a cold wind whistling through the boards and a window which someone decided had to be open before good sleeping was possible. The water swirling down the rapids just below the cabin served to lull the group to sleep—that is those who were able to sleep.

A HUNGRY GANG

When morning came there were flapjacks and plenty of syrup and sausages. It took three cooks to keep up with the men and to supply coffee. About 8:30 Louis Donini and a few friends arrived in camp, having been unable to come up the day before. That was the end of the flap jacks.

Knot tying occupied an hour after breakfast and was followed by church services under the direction of M. G. Clark valley executive. Catholic men in group attended services at a little town near camp.

Rope making machines interested the group for nearly an hour after church services and then came the big hike. Mr. Schubert led the men off through the woods explaining to them the several sights and trails that might be taken. About eight miles was covered by the group before it returned to camp.

One of the big attractions on the hike was the knowledge of trees imparted by Alexander Smith of Lawrence college, a boy scout student. Mr. Smith explained to the future leaders the various ways of identifying trees and brush that showed above the snow.

It was a thoroughly tired group that sat down to a big baked ham dinner prepared by Elmer Nelson and John Wells at noon. After the "feed," the process of cleaning up and preparing for the homeward trip started. Members of several parties stopped along the route to get Christmas trees in the north territory.

Among those who made up the party were C. P. Schroeder, Harry Zimars, Karl Kleppel, J. C. Lloyd, E. E. Gar, G. W. Hill, E. H. Schulz, Dr. E. J. Ladner, Louis Bonini, H. Johnson, Olin Dryer, Jack Kimball, Henry Heiss, Ivan Stone, George Beck, G. R. McIntyre, F. Nabbefeldt, J. Hopfensperger, Harry Parton, John Wells, Harold Brown, Stephen McMahon, Donald Rousch, Walter Fox, Elmer Root, H. R. Roubowski, Plymouth, W. E. Schubert, Elmer Nelson, and Alexander Smith.

FACES TRIAL FOR STEALING CHICKENS

Bert Hamilton, 65, Pleads Not Guilty to Charge and Is Held at Jail

Bert Hamilton, 65, Appleton, arrested Saturday by local police on a charge of stealing chickens, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg Monday morning and his trial was set for 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. The old man was unable to furnish bonds of $100 and he is being held at the county jail.

Police arrested Hamilton Saturday after they had been tipped off that someone was about to attempt to sell stolen chickens. Hamilton, it is said, had admitted he took the chickens from a farm on the Mackville road outside the city limits. When arrested he had the eight chickens in a bag. They had been killed but not cleaned. He was unable to give the name of the farmer from whom he took the fowls, and the police, after several days of investigation, declare they are unable to find the owner.

It had been planned, if the owner of the chickens could be found, to book Hamilton on a charge of burglary but this plan was dropped and he was charged with chicken stealing, instead. If the owner of the chickens cannot be found George T. Prim, chief of police, plans to give them to an organization to give to poor families.

WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC CONSIDERED BY LEAGUE

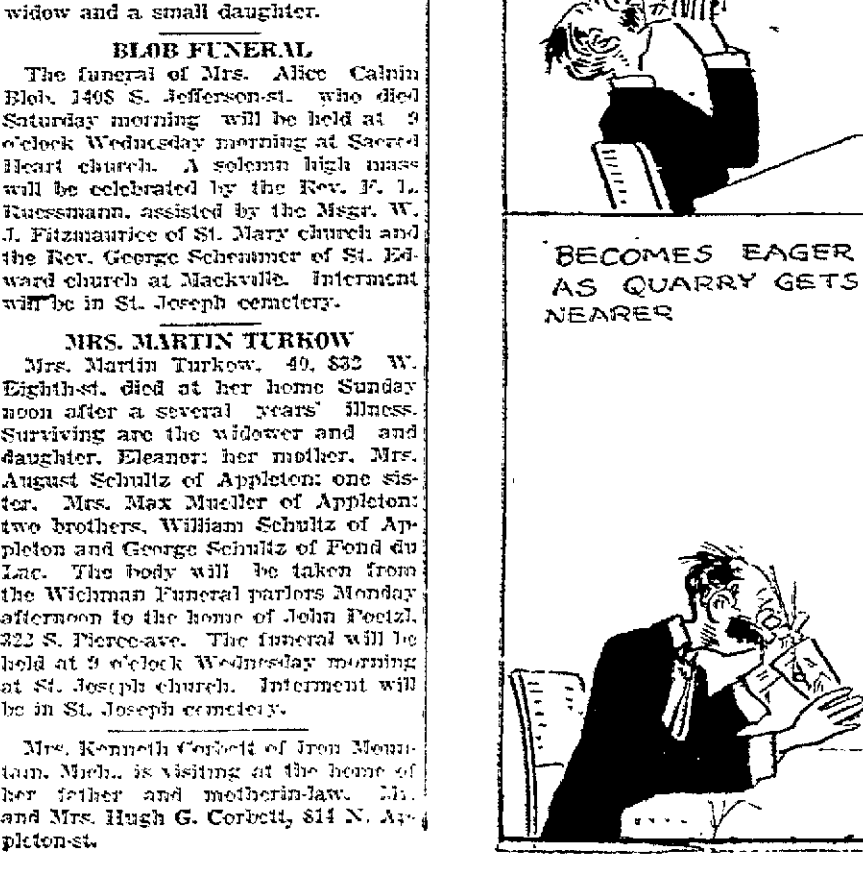

Geneva.—(AP)—Maintaining that the white slave inquiry of the league of nations in Latin American countries was superficial and insufficient, the Pauline Luisi of Uruguay, Monday announced that she could only subscribe to the report of the white slave committee under reservation. Dr. Luisi made known her decision in a letter to the council of the league of nations which opened its session here Monday.

The report in question is the famous "part two" which has hitherto been suppressed. This report deals with the league's inquiry into the traffic in women and children and gives details of the traffic by countries, including the United States.

The council Monday ordered publication of the report together with observations of the governments of the countries to which the report refers.

Mr. L. Davy, English Grocer recently received a postcard mailed by his brother in 1908. The writer has been dead for fifteen years.

CONGRESS CONVENES FOR 70TH SESSION

Nebraska Senator Firm in Determination to Keep Control of Shoals

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington.—The gentlemen who have spent great wads of money trying to prevent government operation of Muscle Shoals, Boulder Dam and other projects must harbor a surly respect for George W. Norris, the most distinguished of the two very distinguished senators from Nebraska.

In the first place, Norris is entirely immune from the methods of attack commonly depended upon to drive most other members of Congress to cover. Other members lie awake nights worrying about re-election, but he was tricked into a renomination last time and will fight like a steer against any attempt to send him back here again. He simply can't be attacked from the rear, for past election returns indicate that Nebraska regards him as sort of a divinity.

In the second place, Norris is so honest that it is almost a shock to find him in Washington at all. He has become a veritable symbol of integrity here. Years ago, the lobbyists gave him up as a hopeless case.

All of which has been proved once more by his latest shots in defense of Muscle Shoals and its great hydro-electric power potentialities.

Norris, you will recall, has been boosted for the presidency by the western progressive senators who recently banded together. Many persons would be dafted by the idea of him or nominator or elector, but whatever initial strength he might have would be concentrated among the western farmers.

In his place, any other presidential possibility would be mighty careful not to offend any of the big farm organizations—would, in fact, jump through almost any hoop they held up. But not Uncle George!

This veteran warrior has gone right out and defied the American Farm Bureau Federation, largest of farmer organizations and the most politically active. The Federation is enthusiastically supporting the American Cyanamid Company's bill to take over Muscle Shoals, claiming that it would mean cheaper fertilizer for the farmer.

It is sending out large gobs of editorialized propaganda in the form of newspaper stories on behalf of the Cyanamid bill, which comes second in the legislative program for the coming session of Congress.

"That talk about cheap fertilizer is so much camouflage," replies Norris. "New inventions in the fertilizer industry have rendered present equipment at Muscle Shoals obsolete for fertilizer production. The objects of the private companies is to get the power there for themselves and to keep the government out of the power business at all costs.

"It would take about 100,000 horse power to obtain the same amount of nitrates at Muscle Shoals which can be obtained elsewhere by the much cheaper new process from 16,000 horse power. These bills like the Cyanamid bill are full of jokers. The power trust lost last year on the so-called 'fertilizer' bill which would have made the company promise to make 40,000 tons of fertilizer—if it could make an 8 per cent profit on it. It is absolutely impossible for the Cyanamid company to make a profit like that at Muscle Shoals and if it gets the lease we simply won't have our fertilizer or our power."

Single-handed, Uncle George has fought off Henry Ford, Cyanamid, power companies and all other interests anxious to lease Muscle Shoals. CONGRESS CONVENES FOR 70TH SESSION

Washington.—(AP)—Banging of gavel in the house and senate at noon Monday found two new faces in the Wisconsin congressional delegation—United States Senator John J. Blaine and Representative Charles A. Kading of Watertown.

Senator Blaine made his debut as the successor to Irvine L. Lenroot, whom he defeated in the election a year ago, joining Senator Robert M. La Follette, who fills the seat left vacant in 1925 by the death of his illustrious ally.

Congressman Kading is the sole newcomer among the 11 Wisconsin representatives. He succeeded Edward A. Voigt of Sheboygan, who retired after serving the Second congressional district for many years.

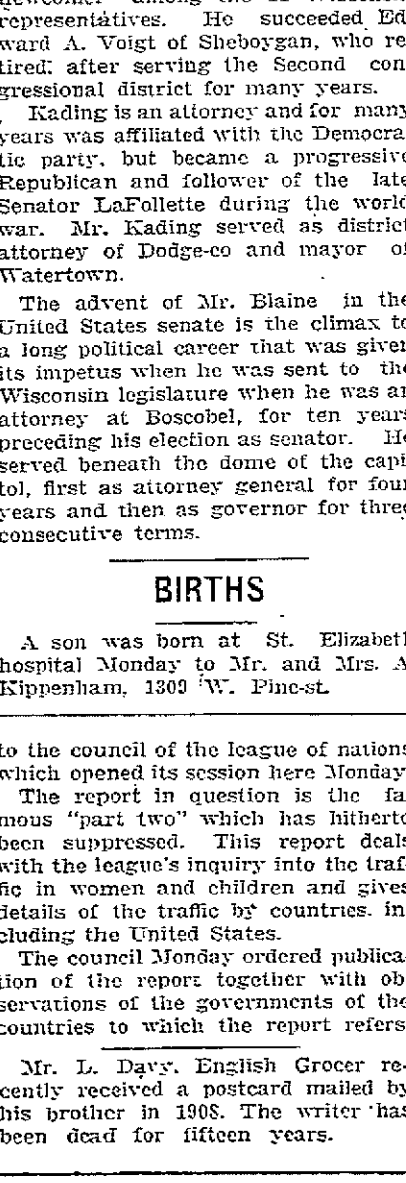

Kading is an attorney and for many years was affiliated with the Democratic party, but became a progressive Republican and follower of the late Senator La Follette during the world war. Mr. Kading served as district attorney of Dodge-co and mayor of Watertown.

The advent of Mr. Blaine in the United States senate is a climax to a long political career that was given its impetus when he was sent to the Wisconsin legislature when he was an attorney at Bosobel, for ten years preceding his election as senator. He served beneath the dome of the capitol, first as attorney general for four years and then as governor for three consecutive terms.

NORRIS OPPOSES CONCERNS AFTER CONTROL OF DAM

Nebraska Senator Firm in Determination to Keep Control of Shoals

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington.—The gentlemen who have spent great wads of money trying to prevent government operation of Muscle Shoals, Boulder Dam and other projects must harbor a surly respect for George W. Norris, the most distinguished of the two very distinguished senators from Nebraska.

In the first place, Norris is entirely immune from the methods of attack commonly depended upon to drive most other members of Congress to cover. Other members lie awake nights worrying about re-election, but he was tricked into a renomination last time and will fight like a steer against any attempt to send him back here again. He simply can't be attacked from the rear, for past election returns indicate that Nebraska regards him as sort of a divinity.

In the second place, Norris is so honest that it is almost a shock to find him in Washington at all. He has become a veritable symbol of integrity here. Years ago, the lobbyists gave him up as a hopeless case.

All of which has been proved once more by his latest shots in defense of Muscle Shoals and its great hydro-electric power potentialities.

Norris, you will recall, has been boosted for the presidency by the western progressive senators who recently banded together. Many persons would be dafted by the idea of him or nominator or elector, but whatever initial strength he might have would be concentrated among the western farmers.

In his place, any other presidential possibility would be mighty careful not to offend any of the big farm organizations—would, in fact, jump through almost any hoop they held up. But not Uncle George!

This veteran warrior has gone right out and defied the American Farm Bureau Federation, largest of farmer organizations and the most politically active. The Federation is enthusiastically supporting the American Cyanamid Company's bill to take over Muscle Shoals, claiming that it would mean cheaper fertilizer for the farmer.

It is sending out large gobs of editorialized propaganda in the form of newspaper stories on behalf of the Cyanamid bill, which comes second in the legislative program for the coming session of Congress.

"That talk about cheap fertilizer is so much camouflage," replies Norris. "New inventions in the fertilizer industry have rendered present equipment at Muscle Shoals obsolete for fertilizer production. The objects of the private companies is to get the power there for themselves and to keep the government out of the power business at all costs.

"It would take about 100,000 horse power to obtain the same amount of nitrates at Muscle Shoals which can be obtained elsewhere by the much cheaper new process from 16,000 horse power. These bills like the Cyanamid bill are full of jokers. The power trust lost last year on the so-called 'fertilizer' bill which would have made the company promise to make 40,000 tons of fertilizer—if it could make an 8 per cent profit on it. It is absolutely impossible for the Cyanamid company to make a profit like that at Muscle Shoals and if it gets the lease we simply won't have our fertilizer or our power."

Single-handed, Uncle George has fought off Henry Ford, Cyanamid, power companies and all other interests anxious to lease Muscle Shoals. He wants the farmer to have cheap fertilizer, but says it can best be furnished if the government uses its profits on power there to install the latest methods of nitrate production. COPPERS LEAD GAINS ON STOCK EXCHANGE

Heavy Buying Causes General Motors to Rally After Slump at Opening

New York.—(AP)—Prices moved irregularly higher at the opening of Monday's stock market. Although some of the leaders such as General Motors, fell off a point or so at the opening, various others were strong at the start notably copper, greenback and Miami Copper opened at a new peak. Ford gains were made at the outset by General Railway Signal, Northern Pacific, Timken Roller Bearing, "Pinto" and "Soe Line."

Heavy buying of General Motors soon came into the market and the stock rallied about two points from its early low. The price quickly went to 120 1/2. Aside from the opening of congress, with prospects of big tax cut, there was little outstanding in the day's news. The closing of the copper continued briskly to 16 1/2 cents. General Motors rose to 120 1/2, followed by Ford, Inspiration Copper, National Steel, and others.

National Steel jumped more than six points, selling at 130 for the first time since it changed from the 100 to 120 and price can type foundry. U. S. Steel Iron Pipe and American Locomotive (General Electric preferred) soon changed hands to 2 1/2 points. General Motors' close, Montgomery Ward, Simmons, Canadian Pacific and Nash Motors joined the early rise to the extent of a point or more. Atlantic Refining soon fell back 1/2 and S. I. E. Warren Brothers, Michigan Alkali, Union Pacific and Radio were off 1 to 2 points. A drop of 6 1/2 points to 16 1/2 cents in Spanish pesos, featured the early foreign exchange opening, with demand sterling around $4.87 1/2 and francs just below 23 1/2 cents.

The closing was irregular. Total sales approximated 2,600,000 shares.
